SENATE REPUBLICANS FACE MOMENTOUS PROBLEMS WITH LINES BEING DRAWN TIGHTER

Japanese Immigration, Coolidge Conflict with Senate Committee and Crowded Legislative Calendar Bring Serious Problems Before Senate for Consideration as They go Into Party Conference to Determine Course of Action

Washington, April 14.—(By the A. P.)—Momentous questions confronted the organization Republicans of the Senate today when they went into party conference to discuss a course of action.

Their principal task was presented by the pending Japanese exclusion amendment to the Senate immigration bill, on which an agreement was sought despite the feeling of leaders that whether they decided to support or oppose the proposal, it would be adopted when it reached a vote.

In addition, however, they had before them the issues developing from President Coolidge's vigorous protest against the trend of the investigation of the internal revenue bureau, which has brought the question of all Senate investigations of executive departments into sharp relief with an open breach between the chamber and the White House threatened.

Another problem that was pressing for consideration was the matter of precedence for soldier bonus or revenue legislation, and behind that was the crowded condition of the calendar generally with farm relief and other important measures requiring action.

Protest Made

The Japanese amendment, similar to the Johnson bill passed Saturday in the House, went over for action until this week. The proposals were made the basis of the grave protest from Ambassador Hanhara last week, but the House voted about 4 to one for the bill incorporating the amendment and Senate leaders have indicated that they expected the amendment to be adopted.

The organization Republicans already have made their stand in the investigation question and have begun a counter offensive against the Democratic-Republican insurgent coalition which is assailing the executive position. Senator Watson of Indiana, Republican "wheel horse," and chairman of the committee investigating the internal revenue bureau, has given notice that he intends to press for action on his resolution asking for the discharge of the committee, while Democratic leaders are preparing to seek adoption of a resolution authorizing the committee to employ counsel at the Senate's expense.

Committee Halted

Acceptance of the Democratic resolution would enable the committee to go forward with the plan sponsored by Senator Couzens, Republican, Michigan, chief figure in the investigation for employment "as special prosecutor" of Francis J. Heney of California. Senator Couzens' proposal was accepted by the committee by a vote of three to two, on the basis of President Coolidge's protest, and Senator Watson charged Friday that the plan originated with Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania and that it meant endless "destructive" investigation centered chiefly on the prohibition unit. The whole plan, he said, was aimed at President Coolidge.

CHARGES ARE NOT SUSTAINED

Postoffice Inspector Exonerated H. T. Murphy of Charge

Charges which were made against H. T. Murphy, acting postmaster of Bismarck, during the time when the question of his nomination and confirmation for a full term was being considered in Washington, were found to be without foundation, Capt. Murphy has been advised.

The postoffice inspector sent out by Postmaster S. S. Newell to investigate reported that Mr. Murphy had engaged in the insurance business successfully in Bismarck, was a veteran of the Spanish-American and World Wars and that he was without doubt fully competent to manage a business institution, either a private business or one of the character of the postoffice.

The inspector, after reciting at length the charges and the things learned by him in his investigation, said it was his conclusion that Mr. Murphy had the qualifications for the position and that the charges set forth by F. O. Hellstrom were not sustained by the investigation.

SENATE WOULD HEAR H. FORD

Washington, April 14.—The Senate agricultural committee today directed Chairman Norris to request Henry Ford to appear in person or through an authorized agent during the hearings on Muscles Shoals and explain some features of his bid. The committee also agreed to extend the hearings until April 29 to permit Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania to testify.

SENATE CLOSING DOORS TO TALK ON JAPANESE

After 45-Minute Secret Session, However, Doors of Senate Opened

AMBASSADOR RAPPED

Hanhara Is Criticized for His Letter to Secretary of State Hughes

Washington, April 14.—On motion of Senator Lodge, Republican leader, the Senate went into executive session today to consider the Japanese exclusion provision of the immigration bill.

Because of the delicacy of the international question involved the Senate leaders took the position that the debate should not proceed in the open.

Japan has made a protest against the exclusion provision couched in unusually vigorous terms, but Republican Senators generally appeared to believe today that an excursion cause would be adopted. The House approved a similar provision Saturday by a vote of more than four to one.

There was only a brief exchange on the subject before the galleries were cleared and the Senate doors swung shut.

Senator Lodge said in making his motion that the question was one that should be considered privately and he replied in the affirmative when Senator Robinson, the Democratic floor leader, asked whether the motion had been made for relation.

Asks Understanding

Senator Swanson, Democrat, Virginia, insisted that there should be an understanding as to whether the motion would preclude debate of the subject on the open floor later but Senator Lodge said the Senate must decide that question after it went into executive session.

Senator Johnson, California, said it was "monstrous" that Secretary Hughes did not make a sharp reply to the Hanhara letter.

Senator Lodge told the Senate it was with regret that he believed the letter addressed to Secretary Hughes by Ambassador Hanhara was an "improper one to be addressed from the representative of one great country to another friendly one."

After the executive session lasting three-quarters of an hour, Senator Lodge withdrew his motion to consider the question in executive session, and debate proceeded in open session.

AMERICA ONLY IDEAL URGED BY MCFARLAND

Exalted Ruler of Elks of the United States Address Large Gathering

CITES LODGE'S IDEALS

Declares That Situation Is Such That Nation Should Always Be Prepared

With a matinee in Bismarck and the main show at the Lewis & Clark hotel, Mandan, in the evening, James E. McFarland of Watertown, S. D., Grand Exalted Ruler of the Elks and "Freddie" E. Robinson, Chicago, diminutive grand secretary of the same order were given a welcome last Saturday such as only Elks can extend.

It was a great day for Elksdom of this section of the state. From the time the officials accompanied by Dr. Bolton of Jamestown, District Exalted Ruler for North Dakota, and Charles D. Ray of Watertown, private secretary of Grand Exalted Ruler McFarland, arrived in the Twin Cities of the Missouri Slope there was something doing continually.

Officials of the Bismarck lodge met the grand officers at Bismarck Saturday morning. They were escorted from Jamestown by L. H. Connolly, Mandan, past district deputy grand exalted ruler, Otto Bauer, H. J. Schaefer, Al Weinhart and H. K. Jensen, all of Mandan.

Upon arrival in Mandan the party was given a royal western reception. McFarland was mounted on a round-up pony, "lugged" and presented with a typical "hook em cow" hat. He declared he would wear it at the annual convention of Elks at Boston this summer. He was also made an honorary member of the Mandan round-up committee, all members of which are Elks.

Entertained at Luncheon

Officials of the Mandan and Bismarck lodges were entertained at luncheon at Mandan and then the party came over for a taste of Bismarck hospitality or for the "matinee" as Freddie Robinson, who is hardly four feet in his stockings, put it.

The evening banquet was an event for Elksdom as it afforded a close-up measure of the man who heads an order of some 800,000 members and directs the destinies of the lodge over which some of the leaders of the nation have presided.

Watertown Attorney

He is a Watertown, S. D., attorney, of exceptional magnetism and a most eloquent speaker. Prominent in his own state and a leader in Elk affairs for years, he has been making a nationwide tour visiting as many of the 1,480 old lodges that he can before he yields the position to his successor. The trip has reached from coast to coast and from northern points to the Gulf of Mexico.

He left last Saturday evening for Billings, Mont., and from there for Southwest point and finally Chicago where in May the corner stone of the great Elk's memorial building is to be laid.

Sound Warning Note

Grand Exalted Ruler McFarland sounded a warning note against the growth of racialists and bolshevistic tendencies in his address, a message of outstanding eloquence and a most vigorous challenge to every Elk to awake to the true situation that menaces popular government everywhere.

He was introduced by Mr. Connolly who was toastmaster of the evening. Reverting to the news emanating from Washington on the Japanese immigration question, he used this as a text for demanding a renewal of American obligations and urged preparedness to meet such situations should they lead to war. As an advocate of peace if honorably possible, he deplored the indifference of the average voter toward his government which only the stress of war can arouse.

"I am proud," said Mr. McFarland, "of being a member of the greatest of American fraternities, one of the greatest countries in the world. But this brings to you and to me and to every Elk in this nation a corresponding responsibility."

"I often wonder if the 860,000 Elks in this nation realize that they have a duty every day and every hour of the day—fidelity to America. No where in the United States do I know available such a volatile citizenry ready to respond to a nation's call in the hour of need."

Internal Menace

"But there is an internal menace that threatens this nation and that is indifference to the obligations of citizenship. Unless all of us are faithful to this sacred trust, we are going to have more and more the rule of the self-seeking politician, the radical, the bolshevik and the communist. We must vote in terms of peace as well as in terms of war. The man who fails to vote at an election is as much a slacker as he who evades the draft."

"Look at Minnesota and Iowa. In Minnesota recently at a senatorial election only 37 percent of its potential vote was cast, in Iowa only 40 percent and recently in South Dakota only 20 percent of the registered vote turned out. You have the same situation in North Dakota and the indifference spreads to every state campaign."

COOLIDGE TO BACK MELLON IN HIS FIGHT

President Confers with Secretary and Sen. Watson on "Counter-Offensive"

GOES TO THE SENATE

Senator Watson Prepared To Make an Extended Statement in That Body

Washington, April 14.—(By the A. P.) The administration is preparing to renew with increased vigor its counter-offensive in its fight against the fight on Secretary Mellon in the Senate.

President Coolidge conferred at length today with the Treasury Secretary and with Senator Watson of Indiana, one of the administration Senate leaders and chairman of the special committee which is investigating the internal revenue bureau. It was indicated Senator Watson would make another speech in the Senate, probably tomorrow, setting forth in great detail the arguments for discontinuance of the inquiry.

Other Senators on the Republican side are expected to join in the counter-attack in support of President Coolidge's charge that the revenue bureau committee has not kept within its proper rights and his warning that the time has come for the Senate to "return to a government under and in accordance with the usual form of the law of the land."

Whether Secretary Mellon will take any further direct part in the argument remains to be developed.

In renewing his request for action on the resolution to end the Revenue bureau investigation Senator Watson will reply to a statement issued last night by Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania, who suggested employment by the committee of Francis J. Heney, the Indiana Senator takes the position that nothing is to be gained by the inquiry proposed by Gov. Pinchot into prohibition enforcement under Secretary Mellon.

Question of Strategy

The general question of the strategy to be employed in the next phase of the battle was discussed at today's conference between the President, Secretary Mellon and Senator Watson. Afterwards Senator Watson said no conclusions were reached. He hastened to the capital to report the views of the President to the conference of Republican Senators, which met prior to the convening of the Senate.

Should an agreement be reached by the Republicans to proceed with the immigration bill Senator Watson indicated he would make no move to bring up his resolution today.

DEFENDS GIRLS OF TODAY FOR CHANGES MADE

Chicago Health Commissioner Sees Improved Health With Changes

Chicago, April 14.—(By the A. P.)—Despite the shortening of skirts, the abandonment of corsets and the bobbing of hair, girls are becoming better wives, Dr. Herman Bundeisen, Chicago commissioner of health, contends, in a bulletin issued in recognition of a "girls' betterment" campaign being conducted here this week.

"The women of today," says Dr. Bundeisen, "have broken away from the old standards of girlish training and the marked sex repression which characterized earlier generations."

"Fortunately few retained of the anemic, tightly-corseted, skirt-trailing and easily fainting women. When grand mother was a girl she wore petticoats that swept the ground and carried so tight that a long breath was reserved for a bed-time exercise in the privacy of her own room."

"The modern girl began a movement when she cut off girlish trappings and the marked sex repression which characterized earlier generations."

"Then came a few bolder spirits who decided a head of unwashed hair, difficult to manage, was not necessarily a crowning glory," so they began bobbing it. Some girls dared to don "knickerbockers" not on scout shoes and took long hikes. "Did these acts make them less womanly?" asked Dr. Bundeisen. "Does bobbed-hair make a woman a housewife? 'We do not think so.'"

About 20 members of the local club have signified their intention of going and they will be accompanied by the wives. Negotiations have been made for a Pullman car in which to make the trip.

The Dickinson High school band will be taken to Bismarck as the local club's contribution to the program to be held during the two days and word from Bismarck committee is to the effect that the program committee has left prominent parts for the appearance of the local organization.

DEMOCRATS IN HARMONY URGE IN NO. DAKOTA

National Committeemen Regret Likelihood of Two Conventions

Regret was expressed today by R. B. Murphy, recently elected Democratic national committeeman, that two statewide conferences of Democrats had been called, one for Jamestown on April 29 and one for Fargo on April 25. There were indications that further moves for harmony would be made.

"I regret that the present outlook for harmony among the Democrats of the state is not as encouraging as I should like to see it," said Mr. Murphy, speaking at a national committeemen-elect. "It seems to me that there is absolutely no good reason for holding more than one state conference convention. I am still hopeful that some way out of the present impasse may be found whereby all Democrats may be represented in one convention. I believe this view represents the wishes of the great majority of Democrats of the state."

"I favor the nomination of a straight Democratic ticket," the coming June primary, including candidates for Congress for each district. I wish my position on this point to be clearly understood among Democrats on account of the fact that in the recent campaign the charge was repeatedly made that my election would mean a fusion ticket made up of Republicans and Democrats. I believe such a fusion arrangement at the present time is out of consideration. I trust that all thinking Democrats will aid in adjusting the differences that seem to exist and that are standing in the way of Democratic national success."

THOUSANDS IN OLDER STATES ARE ATTRACTED

Railroad Officials and Immigration Agents Say Interest Has Increased

MANY COME ON VISITS

North Dakota Getting Her Share of Heavy Homeseeker Travel to Northwest

The first step in what many authorities declare will be ultimately the most pronounced immigration movement the Northwest has experienced in many years has begun. It has begun with the coming to the Northwest of thousands of farmers and others, on homeseekers' low-priced tickets, to view the situation, and with the actual removal here of many farmers from the high-priced areas to the south and east of North Dakota.

Railroad, agricultural and immigration officials of St. Paul, where inquiries have centered, says that the movement to the Northwest, which was halted at the time the readjustment began, is gaining notable momentum this spring. Thousands of inquiries are being received and hundreds of prospective settlers are making preliminary arrangements to settle on Northwest land, officials disclosed.

Commissioner of Immigration J. M. Devine of North Dakota is receiving many inquiries concerning North Dakota, and the sectional booster clubs being formed in various parts of the state are actively in touch with thousands who have become interested in potentialities in the Northwest. Information from officers of various counties in who are in touch with the situation locally, have asserted that in this section reports of wholesale migration are grossly exaggerated, relatively few having left the country.

Advertising Brings Response

"The advertising interest of farmers in low-priced lands in the Northwest is indicated by the large number who have responded to advertising done in recent months. E. C. Leedy, general agricultural agent of the Great Northern railway, said in St. Paul.

"The advertising emphasized opportunities to grow feed and grain crops, and to raise cattle and hogs. Dairying in the Northwest is also emphasized. This advertising program was inaugurated in 1920 with the return of homeseekers' reduced round trip fares. This policy will be continued until thousands of new settlers are brought to these states."

12,000 Seek Information

During the four winter months more than 12,000 persons requested information about the lands in the Northwest. They want to know where good productive land can be obtained and at prices which will give them a fair return for their capital invested. The questions asked and information given by the prospective settlers indicate that the most substantial type of farmer is now interested in the Northwest.

Minnesota and North Dakota attract the experienced farmers from the older states who are attracted by the progress that has been made in these states in raising hogs and cattle and in dairying.

Montana Appeals to Young

"The opportunities in Montana appeal especially to the younger farmers, who are attracted by low prices and the opportunity to carve a home out of the wilderness."

"The fact that Montana in 1923 grew the largest crop of wheat in its agricultural history, in addition to making substantial progress in development of diversified crops and the introduction of live stock, is an important factor in attracting new settlers."

"Idaho, Washington and Oregon appeal to persons who wish to engage in some specialized line, such as fruit growing and poultry raising, and to persons of limited means who wish to combine industrial employment or office work with tilling a small tract. Those interested in the climate are also drawn there."

100 Make Trip

"On March 4 to 18, when the first of the low round trip homeseeker excursions was offered, more than 100 persons took advantage of these low rates, 12 going to Minnesota, 52 to North Dakota, 19 to Montana and 1 to Washington state."

"On April 1, 53 used the two transcontinental trains out of St. Paul and Minneapolis, divided in about the same proportions among these states."

As an advocate of peace if honorably possible, he deplored the indifference of the average voter toward his government which only the stress of war can arouse.

"I am proud," said Mr. McFarland, "of being a member of the greatest American fraternity in the world. But this brings to you and to me and to every Elk in this nation a corresponding responsibility."

"I often wonder if the 860,000 Elks in this nation realize that they owe a duty every day and every hour of the day—fidelity to America. Nowhere as in United States do I know available such a volatile citizenry ready to respond to a nation's call in the hour of need."

Internal Menace
"But there is an internal menace that threatens this nation and that is indifference to the obligations of citizenship. Unless all of us are faithful to this sacred trust, we are going to have more and more the rule of the self seeking politician, the radical, the bolshevist and the communist. We must vote in times of peace as well as in times of war. The man who fails to vote at any election is as much a slacker as he who evades the draft."

Look at Minnesota and Iowa. In Minnesota recently at a senatorial election only 37 percent of its potential vote was cast, in Iowa only 40 percent and recently in South Dakota only 20 percent of the registered vote turned out. You have the same situation in North Dakota and the indifference spreads to every state

President Confers with Secretary and Sen. Watson on "Counter-Offensive"

GOES TO THE SENATE

Senator Watson Prepared To Make an Extended Statement in That Body

Washington, April 14.—(By the A. P.)—The administration is preparing to renew with increased vigor its counter-offensive in its fight against the fight on Secretary Mellon in the Senate.

President Coolidge conferred at length today with the Treasury Secretary and with Senator Watson of Indiana, one of the administration Senate leaders and chairman of the special committee which is investigating the internal revenue bureau. It was indicated that Secretary Mellon would make another speech in the Senate, probably tomorrow, setting forth in great detail the arguments for discontinuance of the inquiry.

Other Senators on the Republican side are expected to join in the counter-attack in support of President Coolidge's charge that the revenue bureau committee has not kept within its proper rights and his warning that the time has come for the Senate to "return to a government under and in accordance with the usual form of the law of the land." Whether Secretary Mellon will take any further direct part in the argument remains to be developed.

In renewing his request for action on the resolution to end the Revenue bureau investigation Senator Watson will reply to a statement issued last night by Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania, who suggested employment by the committee of Francis J. Henry. The Indiana Senator takes the position that nothing is to be gained by the inquiry proposed by Gov. Pinchot into prohibition enforcement under Secretary Mellon.

Question of Strategy
The general question of the strategy to be employed in the next phase of the battle was discussed at today's conference between the President, Secretary Mellon and Senator Watson. Afterwards Senator Watson said no conclusions were reached. He hastened to the capitol to report the views of the President to the conference of Republican Senators which met prior to the convening of the Senate.

Should an agreement be reached by the Republicans to proceed with the immigration bill Senator Watson indicated he would make no move to bring up his resolution today.

DEFENDS GIRLS OF TODAY FOR CHANGES MADE

Chicago Health Commissioner Sees Improved Health With Changes

Chicago, April 14.—(By the A. P.)—Despite the shortening of skirts, the abandonment of corsets and the bobbing of hair, girls are becoming better wivers, Dr. H. C. Bundesen, Chicago commissioner of health, contends, in a bulletin issued in recognition of a "girls betterment" campaign being conducted here this week.

"The women of today," says Dr. Bundesen, "have broken away from the old standards of girlhood training and the marked sex repression which characterized earlier generations."

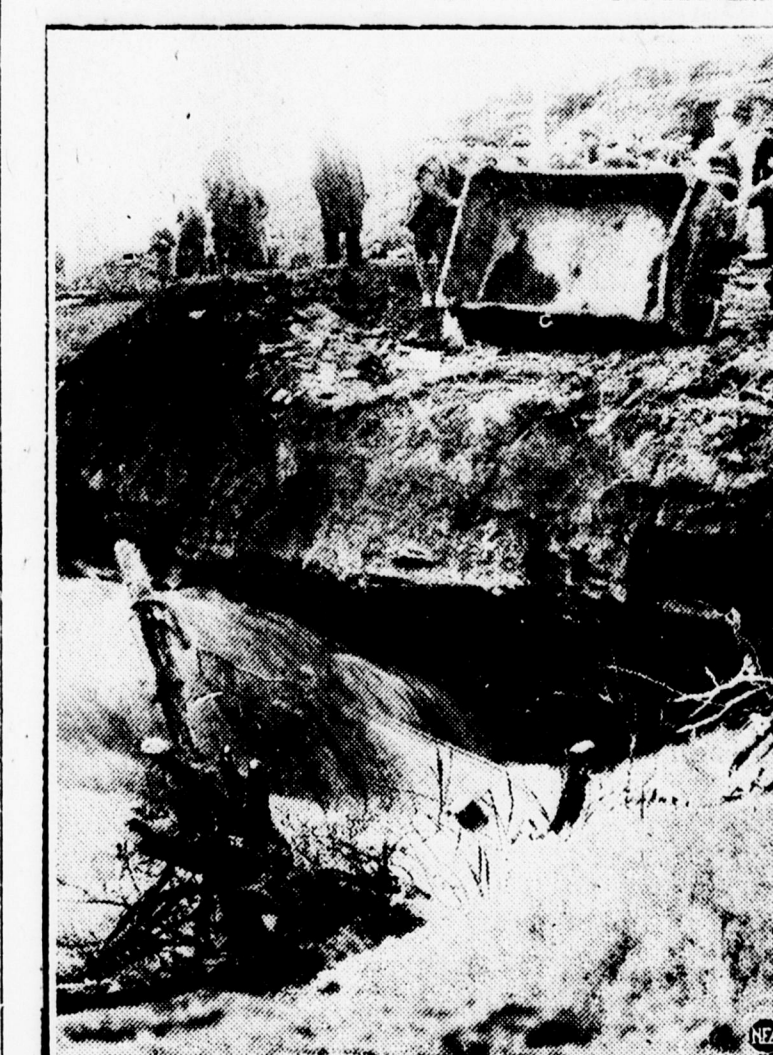

"Fortunately few remain of the anaemic, tightly-corseted, skirt-trailing and easily fainting women. When grand mother was a girl she wore petticoats that swept the ground and her skirt so tight that a long breath was reserved for a bed-time exercise in the privacy of her own room."

"The modern girl began a movement when she cut off several inches of her skirt, and dared to show her ankle, but by this act she complied with a long-felt hygienic need. It is strange how easily the civilized world has accepted this."

"With this encouragement advanced thinking women and girls decided it was not necessary to be choked in the waist-line. They realized the evil of the tightly-laced corset and a little inquiry into history showed that the most beautiful physiques of women were among the ancients who did not wear corsets. So the torture of the tight corset was eliminated."

Then came a few bolder spirits who decided a head of unwashed hair, difficult to manage, was not necessarily "a crowning glory," so they began bobbing it. Some girls dared to don "knickers," put on scout shoes and took long hikes. "Did these acts make them less womanly?" asked Dr. Bundesen. "Does hobnob-hair make a worse housewife? "We do not think so."

DICKINSON'S ROTARY BRINGS ALONG A BAND

Dickinson, N. D., April 14.—Dickinson Rotarians are busy making plans to attend the Ninth district Rotary clubs convention to be held at Bismarck April 24 and 25. About 20 members of the local club have signified their intention of going and they will be accompanied by the wives. Negotiations have been made for a Pullman car in which to make the trip.

The Dickinson High school band will be taken to Bismarck as the local clubs' contribution to the programs to be held during the two days and word from Bismarck committee is to the effect that the program committee has left prominent parts for the appearance of the local organization.

DEMOCRATS IN HARMONY URGE IN NO. DAKOTA

National Committeemen Regret Likelihood of Two Conventions

Regret was expressed today by R. R. Murphy, recently elected Democratic national committeeman, that two state-wide conferences of Democrats had been called, one for Jamestown on April 29 and one for Fargo on April 25. There were indications that further moves for harmony would be made.

"I regret that the present outlook for harmony among the Democrats of the state is not as encouraging as I should like to see it," said Mr. Murphy, speaking as national committeeman-elect. "It seems to me that there is absolutely no good reason for holding more than one state conference convention. I am still hopeful that some way out of the present impasse may be found whereby all Democrats may be represented in one convention. I believe this view represents the wishes of the great majority of Democrats of the state."

"I favor the nomination of a straight Democratic ticket in the coming June primary, including candidates for Congress for each district. I wish my position on this point to be clearly understood among Democrats on account of the fact that in the recent campaign the charge was repeatedly made that my election would mean a fusion ticket made up of Republicans and Democrats. I believe such a fusion arrangement at the present time is out of consideration. I trust that all thinking Democrats will aid in adjusting the differences that seem to exist and that are standing in the way of Democratic national success."

FRIENDS FIND MISS BURNETT IS MUCH ALIVE

Miss Frances Burnett of Dickinson, member of the law firm of Crawford, Cain and Burnett, expressed hope that friends would not find out the report of her death was untrue until she has received a nice lot of Easter flowers, according to an acquaintance who returned here today. Reports were received by Fargo and Bismarck papers that Miss Burnett had died. She not only has not, but informed friends she did not intend to, according to L. R. Baird.

PRAIRIE FIRE LOSS

Hazleton, N. D., April 14.—A prairie fire out northeast of town burned over considerable territory and also the barn on the Richie Simpson farm, the windmill was also destroyed as was about 400 bushels of corn. Many of the farmers in the vicinity worked very diligently to get the fire in check and succeeded.

THOUSANDS IN OLDER STATES ARE ATTRACTED

Railroad Officials and Immigration Agents Say Interest Has Increased

MANY COME ON VISITS

North Dakota Getting Her Share of Heavy Homeseeker Travel to Northwest

The first step in what many authorities declare will be ultimately the most pronounced immigration movement the Northwest has experienced in many years has begun.

It has begun with the coming to the Northwest of thousands of farmers and others, on homeseekers' low-priced tickets, to view the situation, and with the actual removal here of many farmers from the high-priced areas to the south and east of North Dakota.

Railroad, agricultural and immigration officials of St. Paul, where inquiries have centered, says that the movement to the Northwest, which was halted at the time the readjustment began, is gaining notable momentum this spring. Thousands of inquiries are being received and hundreds of prospective settlers are making preliminary arrangements to settle on Northwest lands, officials disclosed.

Commissioner of Immigration J. M. Devine of North Dakota is receiving many inquiries concerning North Dakota, and the sectional booster clubs being formed in various parts of the state are actively in touch with thousands who have become interested in potentialities in the Northwest. Information from officers of various counties, who are in touch with the situation locally, have asserted that in this section reports of wholesale migration are grossly exaggerated, relatively few having left the country.

Advertising Brings Response
"The increased interest of farmers in low-priced lands in Northwest states is indicated by the large number who have responded to advertising done in recent months. E. C. Leedy, general agricultural agent of the Great Northern railway, said in St. Paul.

"The advertising emphasized opportunities to grow feed and grain crops, and to raise cattle and hogs. Dairying in the Northwest is also emphasized. This advertising program was inaugurated in 1923 with the return of homeseekers' reduced round trip fares. This policy will be continued until thousands of new settlers are brought to these states."

12,000 Seek Information
During the four winter months more than 12,000 persons requested information about the land in the Northwest. They want to know where good productive land can be obtained and at prices which will give them a fair return for their capital investment. The questions asked and information given by the prospective settlers indicate that the most substantial type of farmer is now interested in the Northwest.

Minnesota and North Dakota attract the experienced farmers from the older corn belt who are impressed with the progress that has been made in these states in raising hogs and cattle and in dairying.

Montana Appeals to Young
"The opportunities in Montana appeal especially to the younger farmers, who are attracted by low prices and the opportunity to carve a home out of the wilderness."

"The fact that Montana in 1923 grew the largest crop of wheat in its agricultural history, in addition to making substantial progress in development of diversified crops and the production of live stock, is an important factor in attracting new settlers."

Idaho, Washington and Oregon appeal to persons who wish to engage in some specialized line, such as fruit growing and poultry raising, and to persons of limited means who wish to combine industrial employment or office work with tilling a small tract. Those interested in the climate are also drawn there.

100 Make Trip
"On March 4 to 18, when the first of the low round trip homeseeker excursions was offered, more than 100 persons took advantage of these low rates, 32 going to Minnesota, 52 to North Dakota, 19 to Montana and 1 to Washington state."

"On April 1, 53 used the two transcontinental trains out of St. Paul and Minneapolis, divided in about the same proportions among these states."

9-YEAR-OLD BOY DROWNS

Dickinson, N. D., April 14.—Louis, nine-year-old son of Jim Mehulka, farmer residing in the Versipoli community 13 miles northeast of Dickinson met a tragic death by drowning in a deep mudhole on the Mehulka farm.

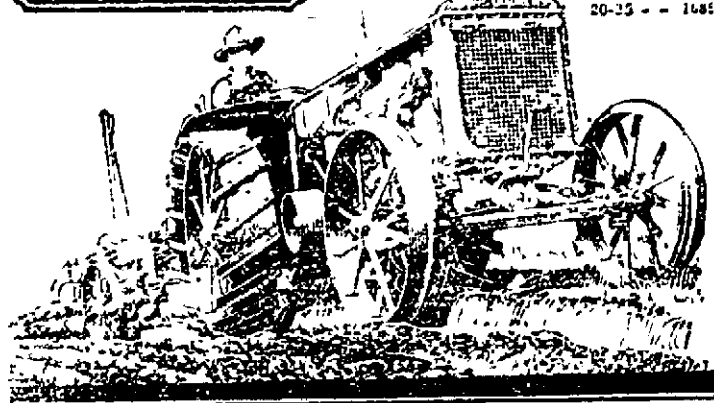

Louis and his brother, Alfred, aged 8, both mutes, were playing about the mudhole when the tragedy occurred. How the lad met his death will never be known.

CREAM TARIFF PROTECTION IS TO BE URGED

Twin City Organizations Take Action Following Sharp Price Declines

HOLD IT NECESSARY

Minneapolis, April 14.—Twin city central commercial organizations Saturday were preparing to throw their support to the movement which seeks to obtain increased tariff on butter to protect the American dairy farmer against foreign imports which have lowered domestic dairy prices sharply in the last few weeks.

The Minneapolis Civic and Commerce association's northwest development committee, meeting at the Minneapolis club, adopted a resolution requesting congress to place an adequate tariff on butter and a tariff on oils which come into the country duty free for use in butter substitutes.

A call was issued Saturday by a joint committee of the agricultural development and retail promotions subdivisions of the St. Paul Association for a meeting to draft recommendations regarding the dairy situation, which will be submitted to the Association's board of directors. This action followed a meeting of the retail subdivision, which was addressed by W. F. Shilling, president of the Twin City Milk Producers association, who emphasized the need of immediate remedial legislation. He said Minnesota is destined to become the world's primary butter market but contended today's difficulties can be corrected by prompt application of the remedy.

The action was taken after a presentation of the situation in the dairy industry of the country and Minnesota and of the significance of the recent drop of 10 cents a pound in the price of butter, by W. C. Coffey, dean of the department of agriculture of the University of Minnesota; John M. Brandt, president of the Minnesota Co-operative Creameries association, and H. R. Leonard, manager of the Twin City Milk Producers association.

The three speakers brought out that:

The drop in price will cost the butter producers of Minnesota $1,000,000 in April alone.

Reduced production will not solve the situation, as foreign imports would then rush in.

The cheese producers are worse off than the butter producers.

Copra is imported under no duty because the soap manufacturers want it so, and it is used in margarine as a butter substitute.

The soap manufacturers have had more weight than the dairy farmers in regulating the duty on this commodity.

Nothing in the situation warrants any letting up in the effort to get better producing dairy cows into the northwest, and other means toward more economical and efficient dairying.

"We've been talking about a $10,000,000 export corporation to help the northwest," Mr. Leonard said. "Here we have a situation where the butter producers of one state alone are dropping $1,000,000 in a month. Because the cheese imports are bearing down even more heavily than the butter, the cheese industry of Wisconsin is being hurt even more than the butter of Minnesota. Upon the present price, the manufacturers of cheese cannot afford to pay more than $1.26 a hundredweight for whole milk. A year ago the price was $1.70. Distributors of milk in Minneapolis were paying $2.75 a hundredweight a year ago and now are paying $2.25. Skim milk used to net us 33 cents a hundredweight when made into casein and now it nets us 9 cents."

in the union. Staid old Rhode Island, the seat of conservatism where one would think conditions might be different, at its most representative election only 53 percent of its vote was cast. What we have now is not a government for and by a minority and care must be taken that a government for and by the people perish from the earth.

"We as Elks do not speak of participation in government along political lines. Partisan politics has no place in our lodge, but sound Americanism has and it is the duty of every Elk to assert himself to see that the highest of patriotism obtains.

"Elks must oppose the arraignment of class against class, bloc against bloc or sect against sect."

Mr. McFarland referred feelingly to the harsh criticism hurled at Presidents Wilson and Harding while alive and the eulogies that swept the nation from loyal Americans at their death as characteristic of the ungratefulness of governments to their public servants. He deplored this as un-Christian and un-American and pleaded for greater tolerance and more tempered criticism of our great national leaders if respect for government is to be upheld and the communist and demagogue are to be overwhelmed in their program of destruction.

Teaching Communism
He declared that leaders were teaching communism weekly to the High School students of New York. Reading from a communist paper an editorial upon Harding's funeral arousing the lowest kind of class hatred, he urged Elks everywhere to fight that kind of invidious propaganda. Mr. McFarland, using this as his text, sketched the great work some lodges were doing in their drive for a better type of American by attending naturalization exercises in the court rooms of the land and through conducting schools in Americanism.

His mission, he said, was to arouse Elks everywhere of the grave dangers that menaced popular government and to spur them on to greater effort in the great program of human welfare which the Elks of the nation have adopted as their bid.

Robinson Talks
"Freddie" Robinson who has headed the Elks as grand secretary for twenty years and seems to have first call on the job, spoke in a humorous vein, but he showed that he had a serious side behind a most mirth provoking laugh. He has seen the lodge grow from 120,000 to 860,000 members and he spoke feelingly of its drift toward the more serious and better ideals in life, in promoting home life and greater happiness in the communities where lodges function.

Dr. Bolton responded for North Dakota Elks and touched on incidents of the grand officers trips over this state.

At the conclusion of the program, Mr. Connolly presented the Grand Exalted Ruler with a gold pencil and "Freddie" drew a sterling silver safety razor.

There was music and some real lively community singing led by Mandan Elks.

OIL COMPANY LIABILITY IS YET UNDECIDED

Supreme Court Sends Ramsey County Case Back For Further Evidence

The question of whether persons who subscribed to stock in the Lake Region Oil Company, which proposed to take over Oklahoma lands said to be oil-bearing, must pay their subscriptions to aid in relieving those who did pay of losses, remained undecided today after the supreme court had issued an opinion in an appealed case from the court of District Judge Buttz of Ramsey county. The company elapsed, according to the court records, after representation of H. D. Mitchell persons in Ramsey county and vicinity had paid $75,575.00 in cash and had given promissory notes amounting to $147,825. Mitchell was tried in federal court but not convicted, on charges growing out of his promotion of the oil scheme.

H. P. Jorgeson, who had paid $5,000 cash into the company, urged in the suit that persons who subscribed to stock but had not paid for their subscriptions were liable as partners for the subscription, to be paid to the receiver and used to relieve those who had paid in full.

The supreme court held that the trial court, before entering a final decree of accounting and dissolution, should give petitioners an opportunity to present evidence on the question of whether or not there was a partnership, the nature of it if there was, the amount of capital each partner agreed to contribute and actually contributed, the loss, if any; and the contribution, if any, that should be paid by partners. The decision of Judge Buttz was reversed in part and affirmed in part, in the opinion written by Justice Sveinbjorn Johnson.

W. O. Shirley was plaintiff and respondent; A. C. Straub and others defendant and respondent and H. P. Jorgeson, defendant and appellant.

MARKET NEWS

WHEAT FIRM IN TRADING

Marked Advance, However, Leads to Recession

LATER REACTION
Chicago, April 14.—Wheat prices drifted downward today after scoring temporary gains. Speculative demand was lacking. The close was easy at the same as Saturday's finish to 5c lower, May $1.05 1/2 to 3/4, July $1.03 1/2 to 5/8.

Subsequently buyers were scarce and a good-sized decrease of the U. S. visible supply total did not affect the market.

Chicago, April 12.—Owing chiefly firmly to Liverpool quotations wheat averaged a little higher today during the first part of the Board of Trade session. Reserves there were indications of some European buying in Canada. Favorable weather for seeding tended to promote selling whenever the market showed material advance. Opening prices which showed from unchanged figures to 3/8 cents higher May $1.02 1/2 to 1-1/4 and July $1.02 7/8 to $1.04 were followed by slight general gains and then a little reaction.

PATRIOTS MUST VOTE, SPEAKER ASSERTS HERE

Rev. S. F. Halfyard, Speaking Before Kiwanians, Defines Patriotism

JEFFERSON IS PRAISED

Minority rule obtains in Washington now, not because of various combinations but because of the own lack of patriotism by people of the country—lack of patriotism because they refuse to vote, Rev. S. F. Halfyard of the McCabe Methodist Episcopal church, told members of the Kiwanis club in session today following the noon luncheon.

Rev. Halfyard, speaking on the relation of religion to patriotism, called attention to an article from Washington in which the writer asserted there was not one official there elected by a majority vote—that one Senator was elected by seven percent of the potential vote of his state and 10 Senators by less than 35 percent of those entitled to the ballot.

Rev. Halfyard said the people needed "a toning up" of patriotism, which would cause them to exercise their rights of franchise. Wide-spread corruption might be ascribed to the indifference of the voters, allowing the right to rule to fall into the hands of the less desirable, he said.

Rev. Halfyard, defining patriotism, said that love of country alone was not patriotism; that one must also be loyal to the institutions of the nation. This meant, he said, respect for and obedience to the law. Those who do not obey the law, he said, are not true patriots.

Rev. Halfyard also said that the man who ordered his life by the Golden Rule and the law of love as laid down by Christ was the better patriot. He used illustrations from laws of Jewish government of old to illustrate his point.

Judge Sveinbjorn Johnson talked upon the life of Thomas Jefferson, whose ideals have been made the occasion of a special week throughout the land, in which he traced the motives which animated the great leader of Revolutionary War days in the framing of the Constitution, as President and in all public affairs of the nation.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Most cameramen will tell you that they aren't afraid when they are photographing such 'stunt' stuff," said Perry. "But I am free to admit that I was scared to death all the time I was up. I'm glad I had the opportunity to 'shoot' this picture with Mr. Forman, but I wouldn't go through it again for ten times my salary."

"BLACK OXEN" AT THE ELTINGE
"Black Oxen," featuring Corinne Griffith and Conway Tearle, is to be the photoplay offering at the Eltinge theatre, starting today for a three day showing and the booking is looked upon as one of the big cinema events of the season.

The best selling novel of 1923, in book form "Black Oxen" is said to have been greatly enhanced by the elaborate filming. Dealing with the romance that develops when the rejuvenated Madame Zerkine returns to America on a business trip and finds the first true love she has known, "Black Oxen" presents more than usual interest to picturegoers. It is said.

Corinne Griffith, regarded as one of filmdom's most beautiful and sportiest dressed stars, essays the difficult dual character of Madame Zerkine, and Conway Tearle has been cast as the romanceless newspaper writer, Lee Claveling. Clara Bow, a 17 year old girl who but recently made her screen debut, selected for the role of the flapperish Janet Ogilthorpe from more than fifty well known screen favorites and established flapper types: Alan Hale is seen as Prince Moritz von Hohenzoller; Kate Lester, as Jane Ogilthorpe; Harry Mestayer, as Jim Ogilthorpe; Claire McDowell, as Agnes Trevor; Charista Selwynne, as Gora Dwight; Tom Guise, as Judge Trent; and Lincoln Steadman, as Donnie Ferrer, who had a weakness for parties.

LIONS ACT TO SAVE ANTELOPE IN NO. DAKOTA

Name Committee to Confer With Game and Fish Commission on Preservation

Members of the Lions club, at noon luncheon today at the Grand Pacific Hotel, named a committee to confer with the game and fish commission and offer assistance and suggestions toward preservation of antelope in North Dakota.

C. B. McMillan, of Hannah, a member of the Guaranty Fund Commission, who was a guest, told the members of the efforts made to preserve the few antelope left in the north central part of the state. The consent of many farmers to have their farms declared game preserves was obtained and the farmers named deputy game wardens, he said. It is hoped to preserve the land of antelope in that section.

Thomas Hall reported antelope were becoming almost extinct in the southwestern part of the state. The club named a committee composed of Mr. Hall, Fred Peterson and J. T. Spies to confer with the game and fish commission and endeavor to have the practice reported by Mr. McMillan put in effect in the southwestern part of the state.

The club postponed business questions until next week, and had a round-table discussion. Guests included Mr. McMillan, J. B. Stinson, president of the Haynes Coal Mining Company, Aberdeen, S. D.; and E. M. Hendrick, traffic expert of the railroad commission.

Easter Services At California At Sunrise

Los Angeles, April 14. Preparations are being made by civic organizations to hold a great sunrise Easter service in the Los Angeles Coliseum, which more than 20,000 persons are expected to attend.

The first California Easter sunrise service was held on Mount Robinson, in Riverside, 60 miles southeast of here, in 1909. The idea was the outgrowth of an informal gathering of national figures at Riverside. One such group included Theodore Roosevelt, Dr. Henry Van Dyke, Jacob Riis and Bishop County.

The first service was attended by less than 100 persons, but in later years, Mount Robinson has attracted upward of 40,000 Easter pilgrims. The idea has spread, and now there are many such Easter morning services in various parts of California.

Poles Destroy Russian Church

Warsaw, April 14.—The Russian cathedral of Warsaw, which to the Poles has always stood as a symbol of the hated Russian regime, will have ceased to exist in a few months. The decision to demolish this church was taken a year ago, but influential Russians and some people in art circles who admired the special architectural beauties of the edifice, endeavored to postpone its demolition, counting on a possible change of opinion.

Now, however, the destruction has begun. A commission of artists is dismantling the paintings and mosaics which, together with the marble parts, will be used to decorate the church being constructed at the Citadel as a memorial to all Poles who perished in the fight for independence.

BAUER SELLS TO TAUER

Washington, N. D., April 14. A business deal that is of much interest to the friends of all parties concerned took place recently, when R. Bauer disposed of his interests in the Bauer Merc. Mr. Bauer is leaving soon on an inspection trip to Wisconsin, with a view to locating in the Badger state.

The amount of money coming into this territory from products shipped through the New Salem station in the month of January was $15,000.

February showed a return for dairy products of $17,800.66.

March, like that of February, showed a small gain, and the amount was $19,219.19.

The total amount for the three months amounts to $52,020.13. This is a very neat sum for the three winter months, the cold months, and the months when there is no green feed for the dairy cattle. Facts show that December, January, February and March are the low months in dairying throughout the year.

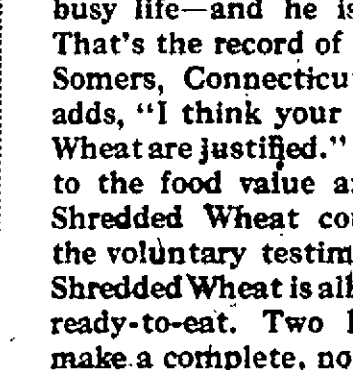

Henry Baber secured the largest check at Hannover, and it is believed that he secured the most money of any of the dairymen in the New Salem, Youngtown and Hannover communities. His check for January was $256.76, and for February $264.50.

WINTER RYE HELD NOT GOOD

Condition Reported Disappointing by U. S. Statistician

Grand Forks, April 14.—Considering its fall and early winter start, the spring condition of the winter rye crop in North Dakota is pronounced disappointing by a report issued today by J. G. Diamond, agricultural statistician for the U. S. Bureau of agricultural economics. Inadequate snow cover during sub-zero weather in January and many days of alternate thawing and freezing in February are blamed by the report for the April 1 condition for rye of 77 percent of a normal, which is 11 points below the condition of the crop at the beginning of the winter and also below the condition of both last year's crop on April 1 and the 10-year average for that date. It will take growing weather to determine whether winter damage has occurred to the extent which now appears, the crop still being in a dormant stage, the report points out. Field work has begun earlier than in any recent year since 1918, according to the report, and found farm labor supply and demand somewhat out of adjustment in places, but the ratio of supply to demand for the state as a whole is pronounced satisfactory. The crop is 100 per cent composed with 35 a year ago and 123 in 1922. Numbers of brood sows on farms in the state have increased 10 per cent compared with a year ago and unless offset by later unfavorable conditions promises a larger spring crop than last year which was the largest for the state since 1917, according to the report.

FIND CROW IS. WARY BIRD

Hunters, However, Bring More Than 100 in to Town After Day's Shoot

The crow is a wary bird. The small army of hunters that went out yesterday afternoon, in the big crowd shooting contest, testified to this. At 1 p. m. this afternoon team No. 1 in the crowd shoot had turned in 62 birds, while team No. 2 had turned in 48.

Hunters scattered in every direction yesterday for crows. The woods resounded with the boom of shotguns and reminders of the opening day of the fall hunting season were seen in the bars going and coming with men in hunting clothes.

The contest will go on sometime, being a part of the International Crow Shooting contest, launched to rid communities of the bird, which is accused of causing heavy damage to crops and destruction to other game. Magpies also counted and several were brought in by hunters. Under the rules of the contest, crows must be held in the rear of the French and Welch store before noon each Monday.

Inadequate snow cover during sub-zero weather in January and many days of alternate thawing and freezing in February are blamed by the report for the April 1 condition for rye of 77 per cent of a normal, which is 11 points below the condition of the crop at the beginning of the winter and also below the condition of both last year's crop on April 1 and the 10-year average for that date. It will take growing weather to determine whether winter damage has occurred to the extent which now appears, the report still being in a dormant stage. The report points out. Field work has begun earlier than in any recent year since 1918, according to the report, and found farm labor supply and demand somewhat out of adjustment in places, but the ratio of supply to demand for the state as a whole is pronounced satisfactory, being placed at 106 per cent compared with 95 a year ago and 129 in 1922. Numbers of brood sows on farms in the state have increased 10 per cent compared with a year ago and unless offset by later unfavorable conditions promises a larger spring crop than last year which was the largest for the state since 1917, according to the report.

BIG CREAM CHECKS PAID

$17,000 a Month Is Paid Out in New Salem District

New Salem, April 14.—An average of seventeen thousand dollars a month, or over fifty-three thousand dollars, was paid to the dairymen of this district in the past three months.

The amount of money coming in to this territory from products shipped through the New Salem station in the month of January was $15,993.28.

February showed a return for dairy products of $17,880.66. March, like that of February showed a small gain, and the amount was $19,219.19.

The total amount for the three months amounts to $53,093.13. That is a very neat sum for the three winter months, the cold months, and the months when there is no green feed for the dairy cattle. Facts show that December, January, February and March, are the low months in dairying throughout the year.

Henry Rabe secured the largest check at Hannover, and it is believed that he secured the most money of any of the dairymen in the New Salem, Youngtown and Hannover communities. His check for January was $256.76, and for February $293.50.

Some of the other very large dairymen are as follows: Henry Barshmann, January $227.36; February, $235; P. A. Johnson, January $162.75; February $212.00.

FIND CROW IS WARY BIRD

Hunters, However, Bring More Than 100 in to Town After Day's Shoot

The crow is a wary bird. The small army of hunters that went out yesterday after them, in the big crow shooting contest, testifies to this. At 1 p. m. this afternoon team No. 1 in the crow shoot had turned in 63 birds, while team No. 2 had turned in 48.

Hunters scattered in every direction yesterday for crows. The woods resounded with the boom of shotguns and reminders of the opening day of the fall hunting season were seen in the cars going and coming with men in hunting clothes.

The contest will continue for some time, being a part of the International Crow Shooting contest, launched to rid communities of the bird, which is accused of causing heavy damage to crops and destruction to other game. Magpies also counted and several were brought in by hunters. Under the rules of the contest, crows must be held in the rear of the French and Welch store before noon each Monday.

L. C. Collins Former Cashier, Is Arrested

Fargo, April 14.—Lloyd C. Collins, former cashier of the closed Farmers and Merchants bank of Hunter, Cass county, was arrested recently on a warrant charging him with the embezzlement of $3,719.14 of the bank's funds. He was released under bonds of $2,500 pending his hearing before Judge J. K. Bingham here at 2 p. m. Tuesday. Collins came to Fargo and voluntarily surrendered himself.

Collins, born and raised near Hunter, attempted suicide last winter by shooting himself and was released from a Fargo hospital, where he recovered from his wounds, about 30 days ago. He is married and has six children.

He was cashier of the bank for many years until it was closed last winter. The warrant charges that he was embezzling the funds.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

Rub on Good Old Musterole That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once. Rub good old Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief.

Colds are merely congestion. Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster, does the work without blister. Just rub it on with your finger-tips. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

To Mothers: Musterole is now made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole. 35c and 65c in jars and tubes.

CREAM TARIFF PROTECTION IS TO BE URGED

Twin City Organizations Take Action Following Sharp Price Declines

IT IS NECESSARY

Minneapolis, April 14.—Twin city cream producers' organizations Saturday were preparing to throw their support to the movement which seeks to obtain increased tariff protection to protect the American dairy farmer against foreign imports which have lowered the price of cream in the market.

The Minneapolis Cream Producers' association, meeting at the Minneapolis hotel, adopted a resolution to place a petition on the tariff commission to obtain a tariff on butter and cream which would place them on a par with the tariff on foreign butter and cream.

The action was taken after a presentation of the situation in the dairy industry of the country and Minnesota and of the significance of the recent drop of 10 cents a pound in the price of butter by W. C. Coffey, director of the department of agriculture of the United States.

The three speakers brought out that the drop in price will cost the butter producers of Minnesota $1,000,000 in April alone.

The drop in price will not solve the situation, as foreign imports would then rush in.

The cheese producers are worse off than the butter producers.

Cheese is imported under no duty because the soap manufacturers want it so, and it is used in nut margarine as a butter substitute.

The soap manufacturers have had more weight than the dairy farmers in regulating the duty on this commodity.

Nothing in the situation warrants any letting up in the effort to get better producing dairy cows into the northwest, and other means toward more economical and efficient dairymen.

"We are now talking about a $10,000,000 export corporation to help the dairy farmer," Mr. Leonard said. Here is a situation where the butter producers of one state alone are dropping $1,000,000 in a month because the cheese imports are bearing down even more heavily than the butter.

The cheese industry of Wisconsin is being hurt even more than the butter of Minnesota.

Upon the present issue, the manufacturers of cheese cannot afford to pay more than $1.75 a hundred weight for whole milk. A year ago the price was $1.70. Distributors of milk in Minneapolis were paying $2.75 a hundredweight a year ago and now are paying $2.25. Skim milk used to net us 33 cents a hundredweight when made into cream and now it nets us 9 cents.

in the union. Staid old Rhode Island, the seat of conservatism where one would think conditions might be different, at its most representative election only 53 percent of its vote was cast. What we have now is not a government for and by a minority and care must be taken that a government for and by the people perish from the earth.

"We as Elks do not speak of participation in government along political lines. Partisan politics has no place in our lodge, but sound Americanism has and it is the duty of every Elk to assert himself to vote the highest of patriotism obtainable."

"Elks must oppose the arraignment of Elks against class, bloc against bloc or sect against sect."

Mr. McFarland referred feelingly to the harsh criticism hurled at President Wilson and Harding while alive and the eulogies that swept the nation from loyal Americans at their death as characteristic of the ungratefulness of governments to their public servants. He deplored this as unchristian and unAmerican and pleaded for greater tolerance and more tempered criticism of our great national leaders if respect for government is to be upheld and the communist and demagogue are to be overwhelmed in their program of destruction.

Teaching Communism. He declared that leaders were to be found everywhere in the High School student of New York. Reading from a communist paper an editorial upon Harding's funeral was of the most kind of class hatred, he urged Elks everywhere to fight that kind of invidious propaganda.

McFarland, using this as a text, sketched the great work that Elks were doing in their drive for a better type of American by, at least, not indulging in caricatures in the court room of the land and through conducting schools in America.

His mission, he said, was to arouse the Elks everywhere of the grave dangers that menaced popular government and to spur them on to greater effort in the great program of human welfare which the Elks of the nation have adopted as their lot.

Robinson Talks. Freddie Robinson who has headed the Elks as grand secretary for twenty years and seems to have first met the job, spoke in a humorous vein, but he showed that he had a vision, side behind a most witty speaking laugh. He has seen the Elks grow from 120,000 to 500,000 members and he spoke feelingly of his drift toward the more serious and better ideals in life, in promoting home life and greater happiness in the communities where lodges function.

Dr. Bolton responded for North Dakota Elks, and touched on many points of the grand order trip over this state.

At the conclusion of the program, Mr. Connelly presented the Grand National Elks with a gold medal and Freddie drew a sterling silver safe.

There was music and some real lively community singing led by Maudie Elks.

Oil Company Liability Is Yet Undecided

Supreme Court Sends Ramsey County Case Back For Further Evidence

The question of whether persons who subscribed to stock in the Lake Region Oil Company, which proposed to take over Oklahoma lands said to be oil-bearing, must pay their subscriptions to aid in relieving those who did pay of losses, remained undecided today after the supreme court had issued an opinion in an appeal case from the court of District Judge Buttz of Ramsey county.

The company collapsed, according to the court records, after an representation of H. D. Mitchell, person in Ramsey county and vicinity had paid $75,575.00 in cash and had given promissory notes amounting to $147,825. Mitchell was tried in federal court but not convicted, on charges growing out of his promotion of the oil scheme.

H. P. Jorgenson who had paid $5,000 cash into the company, urged in the suit that persons who subscribed to stock but had not paid for their subscriptions were liable as partners for the subscription, to be paid to the receiver and used to relieve those who had paid in full.

The supreme court held that the trial court, before entering a final decree of accounting and dissolution, should give petitioners an opportunity to introduce evidence on the question of whether or not there was a partnership, the nature of it if there was, the amount of capital each partner agreed to contribute and actually contributed, the loss, if any; and the contribution, if any, that should be paid by partners. The decision of Judge Buttz was reversed in part and affirmed in part, in the opinion written by Justice Sveinbjorn Johnson.

W. O. Shirley was plaintiff and respondent. A. C. Straub and others, defendant and respondent and H. P. Jorgenson, defendant and appellant.

WHEAT FIRM IN TRADING

Marked Advance, However, Leads to Recession

LATER REACTION. Chicago, April 14.—Wheat prices drifted downward today after scoring temporary gains. Speculative demand was lacking. The close was easy at the same as Saturday's finish to be lower, May $1.05 1/2 to 3/4, July $1.03 1/2 to 3/4.

Subsequently buyers were scarce and a good sized decrease at the U. S. visible supply total did not affect the market.

Chicago, April 12.—Owing chiefly to Liverpool quotations wheat advanced a little higher today during the first part of the Board of Trade session. Besides there were indications of some European buying in Canada. Favorable weather for seeding tended to promote selling whenever the market showed material advance. Opening price, which showed from unchanged figures to 1/8 cent higher, May $1.02 1/2 to 1/4 and July $1.03 1/2 to 1/4 were followed by "slight" general gains and then a little reaction.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER

(Established 1873)

THE BEST POLICY

Supt. Saxvik's recommendation backed by members of the Board of Education to place the Junior High in the Roosevelt school is most commendable. The hysteria of saving money at the expense of the common school system can be carried too far. But of course this adjustment can be made without any additional cost, so it should commend itself doubly to the patrons of the school.

This arrangement will not disturb any grades now housed in the Roosevelt School.

The Roosevelt school is a fine fire-proof structure, with gymnasium, auditorium and cafeteria facilities—a school plant which is a delight to students, teachers and parents. To allow four rooms in this excellent building to go unused would be the height of folly. It is unfortunate that any school child in this age and generation has to put up with an antiquated and dilapidated structure such as the William Moore school of the vintage of territorial days.

It is only a matter of a few years when this building must be wrecked and provision made either for the erection of a modern high school on this site and the use of the present high school for grade purposes or the erection there of a modern grade school building. Only with the greatest precautions and every safeguard is the William Moore school available at all and after the best has been said, it stands as a constant menace to the health and safety of the pupils.

It seems inopportune that the demand comes first to retrench in expenditures for the common schools where the greatest number of students receive what education they get; few in proportion reaching high school and still fewer enrolling in schools of higher education.

Those who are so solicitous over tax reduction should start with some of the other political sub-divisions where savings could be made without sacrifice to the children and especially to their future as useful citizens. Eliminate waste and duplication practiced by the higher institutions of learning, but spare the common schools where more funds are needed to give every child at least a start in life.

The patrons of the Bismarck schools should commend the board in attempting to save what they can without injuring the efficiency of the schools, but no one wants these officials to impair the fundamental educational structure and be a penny wise and a pound foolish.

There are more glaring evidences of misuse of funds than in the administration of our school budget.

Don't place the whole burden of tax retrenchment upon the school system when the white elephant of a mill and elevator at Grand Forks continues to gouge the taxpayers of the state and hardly a protest raised against it.

A STERLING AMERICAN

Those fortunate enough to hear the vigorous message of James G. McFarland, grand exalted ruler of the Elks, must have been impressed with the kind of Americanism he is preaching up and down this broad land to the more than 860,000 members of that powerful organization.

It was not merely a clarion call to duty for Elks alone but for everyone who estimates properly his obligations as a citizen of the United States. He emphasized eloquently that fraternal lodges must stand for more than ritual, signs and mysterious intonations. They should present a strong, virile program for human welfare and the preservation of American traditions and constitutional ideals upon which this great republic is founded.

His plea for tolerance in criticism of high officials and for a greater participation in popular government through the casting of a more representative vote on national, state and local issues was most timely.

"Jimmie" McFarland and his aide "Freddie" E. Robinson, the diminutive grand secretary who has served in that capacity for more than twenty years, make good advance agents for the kind of Americanism needed in this day when a tidal wave of extreme radicalism threatens the very foundations of the nation.

ANOTHER TESTIMONIAL

Armour Creameries is one of the largest produce and cream companies in the country. It is hardly likely that this corporation would have purchased the Bismarck and Minot plants of the Northern Produce Company—and no others in North Dakota—unless the corporation's officers had investigated the territory in which the plants operate, and had by that investigation become convinced of the real worth of this section of the state as a coming dairy and produce center. Bismarck people may expect to see this large industry grow.

HORRIBLE

Congress contemplates installing a radio broadcasting station to send its speeches to all corners of the country. Senator Howell introduced a resolution for a committee to investigate the cost.

Inasmuch as the scheme starts on the "investigation" basis, it probably will not get very far.

But if Congress ever does broadcast the stuff printed in the Congressional Record, we recommend, in view of the average receiving set used by radio bugs, that Congress be assigned a wavelength of 10,000 meters.

PROPHECY

All autos will be equipped with radio telephones within five years. This is the prediction by Hiram P. Maxim, president of American Radio Relay League.

He estimates that amateur radio fans in our country have already spent 200 million dollars for sets. That's only a start. The radio market, properly stimulated by invention, has a plum of billions of dollars of sales in sight. Such a stimulus will rapidly develop radio from an entertaining toy into a practical everyday device as indispensable as the auto or wired phone.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

AN ATTEMPT TO BE PHILOSOPHICAL

As it is the citizen's duty to express his opinion at the primary of his or her party, it is the duty of the newspaper to express its opinion on the issues and candidates before the voters. The Tribune has performed its duty to the best of its ability. Especially it has urged upon the consideration of Republican voters the facts of the record of Gov. Small, and upon those facts appealed to candidates to refuse his nomination. That appeal a majority of Republicans who voted Tuesday have refused.

We have no disposition to discuss at this moment why Small has been preferred to Eastman. The record of Small and his administration makes a sordid chapter in the history of Illinois. But there have been other sordid chapters. There have been other discreditable administrations; yet the state has prospered in spite of them. It has grown and progressed. The Yates administration, the Tanner administration, with their spoils scandals, represented a setback for good government in Illinois, but they were followed by better days. In fact it was a most honest and idealistic individual who made the worst governor Illinois ever had. It was not a spoils governor, but John P. Altgeld, a reformer, a foe of the conventional evils of practical politics. When the public safety was endangered by riot, when property was being destroyed and lives taken by violence, it was no spoilsman or grafter but this conscientious though wrong-headed executive who refused to do his duty as guardian of the public order. His radical sympathies were dominant over his official conscience and did not express the ideas of the mass of the people by whose votes he had been placed in office. The President of the United States had to interpose with federal troops to declare this an act of usurpation. The same sympathies and false theories actuated his pardon of the anarchists who had been convicted for fomenting the assassination of the police in the Haymarket riot. He was a politician because it was policemen who had been murdered. That was a passage in our history which was not sordid in the sense of the ordinary regime of graft and inefficiency, but was the most serious threat to the welfare of the state it had ever known.

It is true that good roads represent the greatest material advance in the welfare of Illinois in the last four years. It is also true that a large proportion, perhaps the larger proportion, of these roads have been built under the Small administration. But ascribing all the credit for this or the chief credit for it to Small is not good sense. We might point out for one thing that Henry Ford and John D. Rockefeller have an important part in the development of these roads. They and their fellows in similar lines, have created the demand for and need of good roads by creating the machines which require such roads. Former Gov. Lowden was laying the foundation of the good road program when Small was not heard from. It was under Lowden's administration that the $60,000,000 bond issue which Small has been spending was voted. It was under Lowden's administration that the construction of good roads was started.

But, be that as it may, there is still great need for more good roads, and great opportunity for building them. If they can be built substantially, and allocated to districts in most need, and which would have most use for them, without political consideration, so much the better. If Small is reelected governor we hope he will build such roads, as many and as fast as possible. It is not and never has been, properly a political issue. It is an economic issue, an essential and natural phase of material progress.—Chicago Tribune.

THE SCENERY COMES BACK

The Standard Oil company began last week the wrecking and burning of its 1,200 advertising signs along northwestern highways. The course taken involves a considerable loss. Many of the signs dismantled were expertly constructed, electrically lighted affairs.

The government has already removed all advertising matter from highways within the national forests. The northwestern states, realizing the value of the nature scenery along their highways, are the scene of a determined effort to end the intrusion of billboards upon their landscapes.

The Standard will find that it has done something which meets the general approval of the country. Mr. Rockefeller's big "trust" has not been accustomed to much popularity in its acts. It may enjoy the change.—Lincoln (Neb.) Journal.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS KARTON

Away to Once-Upon-a-Time Land went Nancy and Nick with Mister Muggs in his magic automobile.

They rode over seven hills of seven colors, and on the top of the last hill, all covered with blue forget-me-nots and violets, stood the blue castle of Cinderella and her prince. The little car stopped at the front door of the palace and a gray mouse in pumpkin-covered velvet let them in.

A gray rat in pumpkin-colored sat on their curbs on a card tray and said he would tell the queen that they were there, also the prince, who was now called King Charming instead of Prince Charming.

They all sat down in a lovely blue and pumpkin-colored room and waited, and by and by Cinderella came running down the marble stairs and burst into the room.

"Oh, I forgot," she laughed, "they are always telling me that I should be dignified now that I am a queen. But it's so hard! There!" And she spread out her train and straightened her crown.

"But I'm so glad to see you, you dear!" she beamed. "Hello, Nancy! Hello, Nick! Hello, Mister Muggs! You see I know your names from your cards. And now do sit down and tell me about all the news and everything. How is my dear god-mother, the Fairy Queen?" "She's fine and dandy," said Mister Muggs. "She sent me to find out if you are happy, and if not, why, and all about it. These Twins just came along for a ride."

Cinderella—I mean Queen Cinderella—laughed and gave Nancy a hug, except one thing," she said. "My two older sisters live with me, and although they mean to be kind, they are always telling me what I should do now that I am queen I suppose they think I should pull a long face and sit with my hands in my lap and all that. And when I give a party it's just awful. They just sit against a wall and make remarks about everybody, and nobody dances with them and they get cross and then they scold me."

"Is that all you have to be unhappy about?" laughed Mister Muggs. "I don't think it is a laughing matter," declared Cinderella. And even my husband is getting tired of them sitting around croaking all the time."

"Why, it is only a laughing matter," said Mister Muggs, "because it is so easily fixed. The trouble with your poor sisters is that they want to be young and lovely, too. So I am going to give you some beauty cream I brought along. Rub a little on their faces while they are asleep and tomorrow they will be young and as pretty as you are, and of course that will make them happy and kind-hearted."

"Oh, thank you!" cried Cinderella. "I'll put it on the minute they get to sleep. 'I am so glad you came.' 'We must be going now,' said Mister Muggs, so they all left the blue castle, Cinderella waving to them from a window.

"I always did feel sorry for those old sisters," said Nancy. "I never thought Cinderella could be happy either as long as they were old and ugly."

REAL NEW SCANDAL CURE

MORE THEY TALK THE BETTER IT WORKS

Here's startling news from Washington. The Chemical Warfare Service cured some colds for senators with chlorine gas. A few days later the same kind of gas was used to cure distemper which broke out among some of the artillery horses. And here's an idea. If the gas being handed out by 'poison' committees could be changed into chlorine gas the more they talked the more they would cure their distemper.

Say, whenever we mention bathtub to our little six-year-old, he starts to fuss and fume and fight and fret. Perhaps, some day, he'll quite enjoy the water hot, or cold—perhaps he will, but that bright day's not yet. And when we even talk about the washing of his neck, or mention that his hands and face are soiled, this little tot just hollers till his mother is a wreck. Alas, we must admit the child is spoiled.

You cannot tell a youngster that a bar of soap is finer; you can't convince that scrubbing does him good. At least that sort of chatter never seems to go with mine; he never uses soap just as he should. But, just the same this water fear is bunko as a rule, 'cause while the child at home will act that way, he changes, absolutely, when he sees a swimmer in the pool and in the pool he'll swim and splash all day. PROCLAMATION

The boyhood of America constitutes one of our greatest national assets. A keen realization of this fact on the part of our people will make this asset of still greater value to the future America.

By instilling in the younger generation an abiding love and admiration for national ideals and institutions, and a realization of the responsibilities and obligations, as well as the privileges of citizenship, many organizations and institutions are contributing something of inestimable value to the stability and moral standards of the nation.

Since its initiation in 1920, the plan of devoting one week in the year, known as Boy's Week, has steadily increased in favor until the movement has spread to practically all of the large cities of the world and is supported by every type of organization working for boys. The National Boys' Week Committee, of which Walter W. Head, President of the American Bankers' Association, is chairman, numbers among its members distinguished men in all walks of American life; church, state, bar, bench, industry, education, army, navy, being brought together to co-ordinate all organizations, creeds, and races represented in the American people. This committee has designated April 27 to May 3 as Boy's Week and has arranged a program for each day of that week designed to show each community not only its obligation to the boy but also its opportunity to serve our future citizenship. The success of the program is assured, if all citizens as well as organizations engaged in work for boys' welfare will extend their active co-operation. The fact that the week designated is also Arbor, Garden, and Native Life Week in this state, suggests a service by which the growing boyhood may contribute much of beauty and utility to a developing commonwealth.

Now, THEREFORE, I, R. A. Nestos, Governor of the state of North Dakota, do hereby, set aside and designate

APRIL 27 TO MAY 3, 1924,

in the state of North Dakota, and do earnestly request all our citizens to lend their hearty co-operation, that boards of education and school authorities, churches, employers of boys, and all organizations interested in boy welfare, lend their aid to make this week of outstanding importance, especially toward making May 1st, Boys' Structure Day, an outstanding feast for the week. Youth is the structure upon which the future rests. That structure will be strong or weak as we develop the spirit of loyalty and devotion in the youth of the nation. This is a responsibility and an obligation of each generation and it is well for the commonwealth as a whole to think for at least one week in terms of the boy, his needs and his future, for his future is the future of the world. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the state of North Dakota to be affixed, this 12th day of April, in the year of our Lord, 1924.

R. A. NESTOS,

Governor.

"Loco Weed" Used For Cigarettes

New Orleans, April 14.—"Marijuana," or "Marijuana" as some spell it, the everyday "loco weed" that formerly grew wild on the deserts of northern Mexico, now is being cultivated on thousands of acres in that country for sale to addicts of the plant in this country, according to Valdo Santos, arrested here with five pounds of it in his possession. Santos was charged with violating a city ordinance against the sale and possession of the product.

The weed, which Santos said is being sent from Mexico to agents in all parts of the United States for distribution, is smoked in the form of cigarettes and, according to Santos, "the business beats bootlegging because the fines are smaller and I sell it for thirty-five cents a cigarette." Authorities say the stuff has almost every known effect upon persons who use it. In some it produces a feeling of exhilaration or grandeur, but instances have been known where grazed addicts have committed murder.

SOUND WAVES BEATEN

London, April 14.—The broadcasting of the Big Ben's chimes has shown that the sounds are carried by wireless much quicker than they travel in the ordinary way. A call for the meeting of the directors of the corporation was issued yesterday.

The directors are expected to authorize appointment of a livestock committee and to consider agencies through which the corporation will work in extending direct aid to the farmers in line with the president's recommendations.

Annual Banquet Largely Attended

The annual banquet given Saturday evening for members of the U. C. T. and the Auxiliary was one of the most successful of the social affairs yet given by that organization. About one hundred were present at the banquet given in the dining room of the Grand Pacific hotel. A pretty color scheme was carried out in the U. C. T. colors of blue and yellow, and places were laid at the banquet table with favors for each, consisting of small lily cups with individual jollies. Chorus singing was enjoyed during the entire evening led by Henry Halverson assisted by Mrs. J. L. Bankston at the piano.

J. H. Grills, Senior Counselor of the organization acted as toastmaster during the short but interesting program following the banquet. Mrs. E. A. Tracer, rendered a solo and responded to the encore with another delightful selection. Mrs. W. J. Targart delighted the members with one of her vocal selections and responded to the encore. Mrs. E. H. Weber responded to a toast on the Women's Auxiliary, and R. L. Best one of the oldest of the charter members of the U. C. T. spoke on Unity, Charity and Temperance, the motto of the order, also of the growth of the organization.

G. A. Praeger, as youngest member of the organization spoke for the younger members of the U. C. T., after which chorus singing was again enjoyed and the members went to Elks hall where the Auxiliary met and held initiation. Mrs. Moraditz of Dickinson was initiated into the Auxiliary. The U. C. T. held a short business session after which dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

MANNEQUINS PARADE NEW PARIS FASHIONS AT RACE TRACK

Paris, April 14.—The most up-to-date, the minute fashions are exploited first at the French race track.

Here the fashionable world assembles to see and to be seen, for besides the smart costumes worn by those attending the races, there is a veritable parade of mannequins from all the smart dressmaking establishments wearing the newest creations, causing much more comment and excitement than the horses.

Photographed are two of the most striking costumes seen at Auteuil during the "Grand Prix."

The snappy three-piece suit and the astringent trimmed hat, in the accompanying picture (at the right) is the costume idea in dress which Paris has advocated so persistently. The buttons, scarf and straight coat all run true to the 1924 ideal.

The most striking hat is the turban, shown at the left, wound with the Italian kerchief which falls over the shoulder. The printed silk frock with the pleated sections is the type that is bound to prevail throughout the summer.

LETTER FROM SYDNEY CARTON TO JOHN ALDEN RESCOTT
As usual, old man, you have fallen on your feet. You have all the luck in the world. No other man on earth that I know of could have told his wife what you have told Leslie and still keep her divine love, for it is divine love.

Of course I understand that you have been perfectly true to Leslie since you have married her, but one swallow does not make a summer, and if I were a woman, Jack, I would not trust you out of my sight. Not that I think that you are a bad boy but just irresponsible.

To tell you the truth, I do not like that very minute description that you are giving of that Mrs. Atherton who works in your office.

When a woman, Jack, piques a man's curiosity continually, the story is told.

You know that a man is so constituted he can love a woman devotedly—or at least think he can love her devotedly—and be untrue to her every week.

I have always found that with you, curiosity is a greater temptation than passion and I don't like your description of that girl. Get rid of her. I don't believe that you can hurt Leslie again as you have just hurt her and still keep her as your wife.

You seem to think that, now you have told Leslie that I am not the father of the boy, that I can come over there. I can't do it, Jack. I would be perfectly ill at ease and it would embarrass me more to know that Leslie knew that I knew the whole story than it did when I thought she thought I was little Jack's father.

By the way, I picked up, in Los Angeles, a lovely old piece of scurlet coral carved into the shape of a god which is supposed to bring good luck.

I'm mailing it today in a registered package to you and, if you like, I would like you to give it to Leslie. It will make a very pretty pendant with some ribbon through it. I noticed that all the women were wearing things of that kind out in the western cities.

Now I suppose that as you have made a clean breast of things you expect to live happy ever after. You say that Leslie has forgiven you, but don't be too sure of that, old man. I believe that you have taken something out of Leslie's life that you can never put back again and this loss will be with her always every time she looks at the boy.

Although Paula Perier may not know it, she has certainly hit upon a most lasting and terrible revenge. She will not let either of you forget. I will venture, at this moment, that Leslie never picks the child up when you are in the room, and catches your eye, that she does not wonder to herself if the picture does not bring another one to your eye—a picture of the child's real mother.

However, time straightens out things one way or another. You will be either very happy or very miserable, and nothing that you can do from now on will help things at all, although there are a great many things that you can do that will make things worse. So mind your step, Jack, mind your step.

You see, Leslie, like most girls when they marry, thought she was your first love and she has with her all the time, indisputable proof that she was not.

I know I am an old kill-joy, but I can't help it, Jack.

Sincerely yours,
S. D.

DATES ARE SET FOR BUSINESS WOMEN'S MEET

Convention to be Held in Bismarck Will Convene Here on May 20

MANY VISITORS TO COME

Definite dates have now been set for the State Convention of Business and Professional Women's Clubs to be entertained jointly by the Bismarck and Mandan clubs, with Bismarck as headquarters. The meetings will open on the morning of May 20th and continue until noon of the 22nd.

Miss Adelia Prichard of Portland, Oregon, President of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs will arrive on the night of the 19th and it is hoped that she may stay during the entire sessions. It is a rare privilege to have the National Executive with us and the clubs of the state are making plans to greet her in large numbers.

Miss Julia McDonough of the Minot Normal, President of the State Federation, will preside at the meetings, and Miss Madura Knox of Grand Forks, National Vice-President for North Dakota, will also be present.

There are now 13 federated clubs in the state as follows: Dickinson, Minn. Bismarck, Jamestown, Valley City, Fargo, Lisbon, Grand Forks, Devils Lake, two at Minot, Bowditch, and Williston, with an approximate membership of 750. These clubs are active generally as auxiliaries to organizations of commerce as well as providing club rooms and meeting places for young women of the town.

Some of them specializing in tea-rooms, bands, study classes, literary work, and in many other directions; but their main purpose may be summed up in this that they aim to develop business and professional women as such, and exhibit special interest in training the girls of our community who are to be our future business women; in studying legislation for women and children and attempting to better conditions under which they work.

No definite program has been approved as yet but the state program committee consisting of Jane Wood of Grand Forks as chairman, and the following members, Lilian Gabelman of Valley City, Gertrude Ritchey of Mandan, Mrs. L. B. Sowles of Bismarck, and Caroline Evingson of Fargo have been hard at work and a definite outline will soon be available. Governor Nestos has consented to make the address at the annual banquet to be held in the Lesau Clark Hotel on the night of May 20th. Miss Adelia Prichard will address the convention and also make suggestions as called upon. Miss Hazel McCulloch of Minot will give a talk on "Peace." Madura Knox will outline the midwinter meeting of the National Executive Committee at Dallas, Texas; Miss Emma VonDomarus of Valley City will present plans for driving to the National Convention at West Baden, Ind. and

The annual banquet given Saturday evening for members of the U. C. T. and the Auxiliary was one of the most successful of the social affairs yet given by that organization. About one hundred were present at the banquet given in the dining room of the Grand Pacific hotel. A pretty color scheme was carried out in the U. C. T. colors of blue and yellow, and places were laid at the banquet table with favors for each, consisting of small lily cups with individual jinglers. Chorus singing was enjoyed during the entire evening led by Henry Halverson assisted by Mrs. J. L. Bankston at the piano. J. H. Grille, Senior Counselor of the organization acted as toastmaster during the short but interesting program following the banquet. Mrs. R. A. Tracy, rendered a solo and responded to the encore with another delightful selection. Mrs. W. J. Targart delighted the members with one of her vocal selections and responded to the encore. Mrs. E. H. Weber responded to a toast on the Women's Auxiliary, and R. L. Best one of the oldest of the charter members of the U. C. T. spoke on Unity, Charity and Temperance, the motto of the order, also of the growth of the organization.

G. A. Praeger, as youngest member of the organization spoke for the younger members of the U. C. T., after which chorus singing was again enjoyed and the members went to Elks' hall where the Auxiliary met and held initiation. Mrs. Moraditz of Dickinson was initiated into the Auxiliary. The U. C. T. held a short business session after which dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

LAYMEN'S AID
"The Baptists," said Rev. L. R. Johnson, pastor of the First Baptist church yesterday speaking of the Easter offering to be taken for the denomination, "are to make a victory offering this year because not one but many victories have been achieved through the New World Movement begun in 1919. One fine thing that has come to pass has been the interest taken in the church by laymen," he said. For a long time many laymen were inclined to say, "Let George do it" while they waited. But such an attitude toward the work of the churches is passing. Laymen are not willing that all the burdens and responsibilities should be carried by a few pastors. They are awake to see that the business practice of the business man is needed in the administration of such large trusts. "It has also been recognized by the men of the churches over the country that the evangelistic messages of the pastors have more influence if the men of the congregation second and encourage them. The national Council of Northern Baptist Laymen are calling for a thousand men to meet at the coming convention of Baptists at Milwaukee the last of May." The subject of the meeting at the church this evening will be, "The Heart of the Law." Meetings will continue through the week. Persons desiring to unite with the church are invited to attend and make their desires known. Special music has been arranged for each meeting.

MANNEQUINS PARADE NEW PARIS FASHIONS AT RACE TRACK

Paris, April 14.—The most up-to-the-minute fashions are exploited first at the French race track.

Here the fashionable world assembles to see and to be seen, besides the smart costumes worn by those attending the races, there is a veritable parade of mannequins from all the smart dressmaking establishments wearing the newest creations, causing much more comment and excitement than the horses.

Photographed are two of the most striking costumes seen at Auteuil during the "Grand Prix."

The snappy three-piece suit and the ostrich trimmed hat, in the accompanying picture (at the right) is the costume idea in dress which Paris has advocated so persistently. The buttons, scarf and straight coat all run true to the 1924 ideal.

The most striking hat is the turban, shown at the left, wound with the Italian kerchief which falls over the shoulder. The printed silk frock with the pleated sections is the type that is bound to prevail throughout the summer.

The Tangle

LETTER FROM SYDNEY CARTON TO JOHN ALDEN RESCOTT
As usual, old man, you have fallen on your feet. You have all the luck in the world. No other man on earth that I know of could have told his wife what you have told Leslie and still keep her divine love, for it is divine love.

Of course I understand that you have been perfectly true to Leslie since you have married her, but one swallow does not make a summer, and if I were a woman, Jack, I would not trust you out of my sight. Not that I think that you are a bad boy but just irresponsible.

To tell you the truth, I do not like that very minute description that you are giving of Mrs. Atherton who works in your office.

When a woman, Jack, piques a man's curiosity continually, the story is told.

You know that a man is so constituted he can love a woman devotedly—or at least think he can love her devotedly—and be untrue to her every week.

I have always found that with you, curiosity is a greater temptation than passion and I don't like your description of that girl. Get rid of her. I don't believe that you can hurt Leslie again as you have just hurt her and still keep her as your wife.

You seem to think that, now you have told Leslie that I am not the father of the boy, that I can come over there. I can't do it, Jack. I would be perfectly ill at ease and it would embarrass me more to know that Leslie knew that I knew the whole story than it did when I thought she thought I was little Jack's father.

By the way, I picked up, in Los Angeles, a lovely old piece of scarlet coral carved into the shape of a god which is supposed to bring good luck.

I'm mailing it today in a registered package to you and, if you like, I would like you to give it to Leslie. It will make a very pretty pendant with some ribbon through it. I noticed that all the women were wearing things of that kind out in the western cities.

Now I suppose that as you have made a clean breast of things you expect to live happy ever after. You say that Leslie has forgiven you, but don't be too sure of that, old man. I will venture, at this moment, that Leslie never picks the child up when you are in the room, and catches your eye, that she does not wonder to herself if the picture does not bring another one to your eye—a picture of the child's real mother.

However, time straightens out things one way or another. You will be either very happy or very miserable, and nothing that you can do from now on will help things at all, although there are a great many things that you can do that will make things worse. So mind your step, Jack, mind your step.

You see, Leslie, like most girls when they marry, thought she was your first love and she has with her all the time, indisputable proof that she was not.

I know I am an old kill-joy, but I can't help it, Jack.

Sincerely yours, SYD. (Copyright, 1924, NEA Service, Inc.)

DATES ARE SET FOR BUSINESS WOMEN'S MEET

Convention to be Held in Bismarck Will Convene Here on May 20

MANY VISITORS TO COME

Definite dates have now been set for the State Convention of Business and Professional Women's Clubs to be entertained jointly by the Bismarck and Mandan clubs, with Bismarck as headquarters. The meetings will open on the morning of May 20th and continue until noon of the 22nd. Miss Adelia Prichard of Portland, Oregon, President of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs will arrive on the night of the 19th and it is hoped that she may stay during the entire sessions. It is a rare privilege to have the National Executive with us and the clubs of the state are making plans to greet her in large numbers.

Miss Julia McDonough of the Minot Normal, President of the State Federation, will preside at the meetings and Miss Madora Knox of Grand Forks, National Vice-President for North Dakota, will also be present.

There are now 13 federated clubs in the state as follows: Dickinson, Mandan, Bismarck, Jamestown, Valley City, Fargo, Lisbon, Grand Forks, Devils Lake, two at Minot, Bowbells, and Williston, with an approximate membership of 750. These clubs are acting severally as auxiliaries to city associations of commerce as well as providing club rooms and meeting places for young women of the towns. Some of them specializing in tea-rooms, bands, study classes, illiteracy work, and in many other directions, but their main purpose may be summed up in this that they aim to develop business and professional women as such, and exhibit special interest in training the girls of our community who are to be our future business women; in studying legislation for women and children and attempting to better conditions under which they work.

No definite program has been approved as yet but the state program committee consisting of Jane Wood of Grand Forks as chairman, and the following members, Lillian Gubelmann of Valley City, Gertrude Ritchey of Mandan, Mrs. L. B. Bowles of Bismarck, and Caroline Evingson of Fargo have been hard at work and a definite outline will soon be available. Governor Nestos has consented to make the address at the annual banquet to be held in the Lewis-Clark Hotel on the night of May 20th. Miss Adelia Prichard will address the convention and also make suggestions as called upon. Miss Hazel McCulloch of Minot will give a talk on "Peace." Madora Knox will outline the midwinter meeting of the National Executive Committee at Dallas, Texas; Miss Emma Von-Domarus of Valley City will present plans for driving to the National Convention at West Baden, Indiana.

THE BEST POLICY

Supt. Saxvik's recommendation backed by members of the Board of Education to place the Junior High in the Roosevelt school is most commendable. The hysteria of saving money at the expense of the common school system can be carried too far. But of course this adjustment can be made without any additional cost, so it should commend itself doubly to the patrons of the school.

This arrangement will not disturb any grades now housed in the Roosevelt School.

The Roosevelt school is a fine fire-proof structure, with gymnasium, auditorium and cafeteria facilities—a school plant which is a delight to students, teachers and parents. To allow four rooms in this excellent building to go unused would be the height of folly. It is unfortunate that any school child in this age and generation has to put up with an antiquated and dilapidated structure such as the William Moore school of the vintage of territorial days.

It is only a matter of a few years when this building must be wrecked and provision made either for the erection of a modern high school on this site and the use of the present high school for grade purposes or the erection there of a modern grade school building. Only with the greatest precautions and every safeguard is the William Moore school available at all and after the best has been said, it stands as a constant menace to the health and safety of the pupils.

It seems inopportune that the demand comes first to retrench in expenditures for the common schools where the greatest number of students receive what education they get; few in proportion reaching high school and still fewer enrolling in schools of higher education.

Those who are so solicitous over tax reduction should start with some of the other political subdivisions where savings could be made without sacrifice to the children and especially to their future as useful citizens. Eliminate waste and duplication practiced by the higher institutions of learning, but spare the common schools where more funds are needed to give every child at least a start in life.

The patrons of the Bismarck schools should commend the board in attempting to save what they can without incurring the efficiency of the schools, but no one wants these officials to impair the fundamental educational structure and be a penny wise and a pound foolish.

There are more glaring evidences of misuse of funds than in the administration of our school budget.

Don't place the whole burden of tax retrenchment upon the school system when the white elephant of a mill and elevator at Grand Forks continues to gouge the taxpayers of the state and hardly a protest raised against it.

A STERLING AMERICAN

Those fortunate enough to hear the vigorous message of James G. McFarland, grand exalted ruler of the Elks, must have been impressed with the kind of Americanism he is preaching up and down this broad land to the more than 860,000 members of that powerful organization.

It was not merely a clarion call to duty for Elks alone but for everyone who estimates properly his obligations as a citizen of the United States. He emphasized eloquently that fraternal lodges must stand for more than ritual, signs and mysterious intonations. They should present a strong, virile program for human welfare and the preservation of American traditions and constitutional ideals upon which this great republic is founded.

His plea for tolerance in criticism of high officials and for a greater participation in popular government through the casting of a more representative vote on national, state and local issues was most timely.

"Jimmie" McFarland and his aide "Freddie" E. Robinson, the diminutive grand secretary who has served in that capacity for more than twenty years, make good advance agents for the kind of Americanism needed in this day when a tidal wave of extreme radicalism threatens the very foundations of the nation.

ANOTHER TESTIMONIAL

Armour Creameries is one of the largest produce and cream companies in the country. It is hardly likely that this corporation would have purchased the Bismarck and Minot plants of the Northern Produce Company—and no others in North Dakota—unless the corporation's officers had investigated the territory in which the plants operate, and had by that investigation become convinced of the real worth of this section of the state as a coming dairy and produce center. Bismarck people may expect to see this large industry grow.

HORRIBLE

Congress contemplates installing a radio broadcasting station to send its speeches to all corners of the country. Senator Howell introduced a resolution for a committee to investigate the cost.

Inasmuch as the scheme starts on the "investigation" basis, it probably will not get very far.

But if Congress ever does broadcast the stuff printed in the Congressional Record, we recommend, in view of the average receiving set used by radio bugs, that Congress be assigned a wavelength of 10,000 meters.

PROPHECY

All autos will be equipped with radio telephones within five years. This is the prediction by Hiram P. Maxim, president of American Radio Relay League.

He estimates that amateur radio fans in our country have already spent 200 million dollars for sets. That's only a start. The radio market, properly stimulated by invention, has a plan of billions of dollars of sales in sight. Such a stimulus will rapidly develop radio from an entertaining toy into a practical everyday device as indispensable as the auto or the phone.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are reproduced in order that readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

AN ATTEMPT TO BE PHILOSOPHICAL

As it is the citizen's duty to express his opinion at the primary of his or her party, it is the duty of the newspaper to express its opinion on the issues and candidates before the voters. The Tribune has performed its duty to the best of its ability. Especially it has urged upon the consideration of Republican voters the facts of the record of Gov. Small, and upon those facts appealed to cool citizenship to refuse him re-nomination. That appeal a majority of Republicans who voted Tuesday have refused.

We have no disposition to discuss at this moment why Small has been preferred to Bismarck. The record of Small and his administration makes a sordid chapter in the history of Illinois. But there have been other sordid chapters. There have been other discreditable administrations; yet the state has prospered in spite of them. Has gross and progressed the United States under the Tanager administration, with their spoils scandals, represented a setback for good government in Illinois, but they were followed by better days. In fact it was a most honest and idealistic individual who made the worst governor Illinois ever had. It was not a spoils governor, but John P. Altgeld, a reformer, a foe of the conventional politics of practical politics. When the public safety was endangered by riot, when property was being destroyed and lives taken by violence, it was no spoilsman or grifter but this conscientious though wrong-headed executive who refused to do his duty as guardian of the public order. His radical sympathies were dominant in his official conduct and did not express the ideas of the mass of the people by whose votes he had been placed in office. The President of the United States had to intervene with federal troops, and Altgeld had the insolence to declare this an act of usurpation. The same sympathies and false theories actuated his pardon of the anarchists who had been convicted of the bombing of the assassination of the police in the Haymarket, apparently because it was policemen who had been murdered. That was a passage in our history which was not sordid in the sense of the ordinary regime of graft and inefficiency, but was the most serious threat to the welfare of the state it had ever known.

It is true that good roads represent the greatest material advance in the welfare of Illinois in the last four years. It is also true that a large proportion, perhaps the larger proportion, of these roads have been built under the Small administration. But ascribing all the credit for this or the chief credit for it to Small is not good sense. We might point out for one thing that Henry Ford, the automobile maker, has an important part in such development. They and their fellows in similar lines, have created the demand for and need of good roads by creating the machines which require such roads. Former Gov. Lowden was laying the foundation of the good roads program when Small was not heard from. It was under Lowden's administration that the $60,000,000 bond issue which Small has been spending was voted. It was under Lowden's administration that the use of this money in actual construction of good roads was started. But, be that as it may, there is still great need for more good roads, and great opportunity for building them. If they can be built substantially and efficiently, and which would have most use for them, without political consideration, so much the better. If Small is re-elected governor we hope he will build such roads, as many and as fast as possible. It is not, and never has been, properly a political issue. It is an economic issue, an essential part of the material progress.—Chicago Tribune.

THE SCENERY COMES BACK

The Standard Oil company began last week the wrecking and burning of its 1,200 advertising signs along northwestern highways. The course taken involves a considerable loss. Many of the signs dismantled were expensively constructed, electrically lighted affairs.

The government has already removed all advertising matter from highways within the national forests. The northwestern states, realizing the value of the natural scenery along their highways, are endeavoring to make a determined effort to end the intrusion of billboards upon their landscapes.

The Standard will find that it has done something which meets the general approval of the country. Mr. Rockefeller's big "trust" has not been accustomed to much popularity in its acts. It may enjoy the change.—Lincoln (Nebr.) Journal.

BY OLIVE ROBERTS HARTON

Away to Once-Upon-a-Time Land went Nancy and Nick with Mister Muggs in his magic automobile.

They rode over seven hills of seven colors, and on the top of the last hill, all covered with blue forget-me-nots and violets, stood the blue castle of Cinderella and her prince. The little car stopped at the front door of the palace and a gray mouse in pumpkin-covered velvet let them in.

A gray rat in pumpkin-colored suit took their cards on a card tray and said he would tell the queen that they were there, also the prince, who was now called King Charming, instead of Prince Charming. They all sat down in a lovely blue and pumpkin-colored room and waited, and by and by Cinderella came running down the marble stairs and burst into the room.

"Oh, I forgot," she laughed, "they are always telling me that I should be dignified now that I am a queen. But it's so hard! There! And she spread out her train and straightened her crown for a minute."

"But I'm so glad to see you, you dears!" she beamed. "Hello, Nancy! Hello, Nick! Hello, Mister Muggs! You see I know your names from your cards. And now do sit down and tell me about all the news and everything. How is my dear god-mother, the Fairy Queen?"

"She's fine and dandy," said Mister Muggs. "She sent me to find out if you are happy, and if not, why, and all about it. These Twins just came along for a ride."

"Cinderella—I mean Queen Cinderella—laughed and gave Nancy a hug. Then she sighed. "I am happy all except one thing," she said. "My two older sisters live with me, and although they mean to be kind, they are always telling me what I should do—now that I am queen I suppose they think I should pull a long face and sit with my hands in my lap and all that. And when I give a party it's just awful. They just sit against a wall and make remarks about everybody, and that they want to be young and lovely, too. So I am going to give you some beauty cream I brought along. Rub a little on their faces while they are asleep and tomorrow they will be young and as pretty as you are, and of course that will make them happy and kind-hearted."

"Why, it is only a laughing matter," said Mister Muggs, "because it is so easily fixed. The trouble with your poor sisters is that they want to be young and lovely, too. So I am going to give you some beauty cream I brought along. Rub a little on their faces while they are asleep and tomorrow they will be young and as pretty as you are, and of course that will make them happy and kind-hearted."

"Oh, thank you!" cried Cinderella. "I'll put it on the minute they get to sleep. I am so glad you came." "We must be going now," said Mister Muggs, so they all left the blue castle, Cinderella waving to them from a window.

"I always did feel sorry for those old sisters," said Nancy. "I never thought Cinderella could be happy either as long as they were old and ugly."

REAL NEW SCANDAL CURE

MORE THEY TALK THE BETTER IT WORKS

Here's startling news from Washington. The Chemical Warfare Service cured some colds for senators with chlorine gas. A few days later the same kind of gas was used to cure distemper which broke out among some of the artillery horses. And here's an idea. If the gas being handed out by "probing" committees could be changed into chlorine gas the more they talked the more they would cure their distemper.

TALL DEPENDS

Say, whenever we mention bathtub to our little six-year-old, he starts to fuss and fume and fight and fret. Perhaps, some day, he'll quite enjoy the water hot, or cold—perhaps he will, but that bright day's not yet. And when we even talk about the washing of his neck, or mention that his hands and face are soiled, this little tot just hollers till his mother is a wreck. Ah, yes, we must admit the child is spoiled.

You cannot tell a youngster that a bar of soap is fine; you can't convince that scrubbing does him good. At least that sort of chatter never seems to go with him; he never uses soap just as he should.

But, just the same this water fear is bunko as a rule, 'cause while the child at home will act that way, he changes, absolutely, when he sees a swimmin' pool and in the pool he'll swim and splash all day.

PROCLAMATION

The boyhood of America constitutes one of our greatest national assets. A keen realization of this fact on the part of our people will make this asset of still greater value to the future American.

By instilling in the younger generation an abiding love and admiration for national ideals and institutions, and a realization of the responsibilities and obligations, as well as the privileges of citizenship, many organizations and institutions are contributing something of inestimable value to the stability and moral standards of the nation.

Since its initiation in 1920, the plan of devoting one week in the year, known as Boy's Week, has steadily increased in favor until the movement has spread to practically all of the large cities of the world and is supported by every type of organization working for boys. The National Boys' Week Committee, of which Walter W. Head, President of the American Bankers' Association, is chairman, numbers among its members distinguished men in all walks of American life; church, state, bar, bench, industry, education, army, navy, being brought together to co-ordinate all organizations, groups, and races represented in the American people. This committee has designated April 27 to May 3 as Boy's Week and has arranged a program for each day of that week designed to show each community not only its obligation to the boy but also its opportunity to serve our future citizenship. The success of the program is assured, if all citizens as well as organizations engaged in work for boys' welfare will extend their active co-operation. The fact that the week designated is also Arbor, Garden, and Native Life Week in this state, suggests a service by which the growing boyhood may contribute much of beauty and utility to a developing commonwealth.

Now, THEREFORE, I, R. A. Nestos, Governor of the state of North Dakota, do hereby set aside and designate,

APRIL 27 TO MAY 3, 1924, as

NATIONAL BOYS' WEEK in the state of North Dakota, and do earnestly request all citizens to lend their hearty co-operation, that boards of education and school authorities, churches, employers of boys, and all organizations interested in boy welfare, lend their aid to make this week of outstanding importance, especially toward making May 1st, Boys' Loyalty Day, an outstanding feature of the week.

Youth is the structure upon which the future rests. That structure will be strong or weak as we develop the spirit of loyalty and devotion in the youth of the nation. This is a responsibility and an obligation of each generation and it is well for the commonwealth as a whole to think for at least one week in terms of the boy, his needs and his future, for his future is the future of the world. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the state of North Dakota to be affixed, this 12th day of April, in the year of our Lord, 1924.

R. A. NESTOS, Governor.

STAR WILL RUN IN EXHIBITION AT CITY MEET

Rolf Harmsen, Who Holds Two State Records, Comes Here on May 3

MANY SCHOOLS ACCEPT

Rolf Harmsen of Hazen, who established two state track records while attending the state school for the deaf and dumb at Devils Lake, and later made remarkable records in a school in Washington, D. C., will give exhibitions at the Capital City Track and Field meet to be held in Bismarck on May 3 under the auspices of Bismarck high school. Harmsen, who is now at his home in Hazen, is keeping in shape for try-outs for the American Olympic team in June.

Harmsen probably will run the 100-yard dash and 220-low hurdles, in which he established state records, at the meet here.

Eighteen high schools in this section have accepted invitations to participate in the track and field meet, and other acceptances are expected during the next week. It is expected that more than 150 athletes will participate in the meet, competing for loving cups and medals to be offered.

The track to be used is now being laid out, and Coach Edgar Houser of the Bismarck High School announces that a fast, cinder track will be ready for the meet. The meet will start at 2 p. m. May 3.

Billy Evans Says

He's a wonder at coming from behind and winning.

Such is an oft-heard expression in sport with reference to the athlete who doesn't know defeat—keeps plugging at all times.

Golf offers one of the greatest examples of the come-from-behind theory in Walter Hagen. Rival golfers are always worried about Hagen regardless of how far he may be behind.

"He's a front runner," is another much-used sport expression. It refers to the player who is hard to beat provided he gets out in front early.

The 1923 world series between the Yankees and the Giants furnished an exhibition of what may happen if one keeps plugging away. The come-from-behind stunt was staged in the sixth and final game of the series. The refusal of Pitcher Herbie Pennock of the Yankees to admit defeat made possible the situation, and with it the championship.

Throughout the game the Giants hit Pennock consistently, scored four runs in seven innings. Only the breaks and Pennock's courage kept the score that low.

Nehf, for the Giants had simply been invincible. A home run by Ruth early in the game was the only score by the Yankees.

The break came in the eighth, when the invincible Nehf developed a streak of wildness that was fatal. The Yanks scored five runs and captured the game.

If Pennock had early conceded defeat, pitched carelessly, the Giants probably would have made so many runs that the Yankee rally would have been nothing.

Pennock's performance was a courageous one. Any time a team or individual comes from behind to win, the feat is regarded as tribute to gameness.

The athlete capable of coming from behind is regarded as game.

The athlete known as a front runner, one who shines when he has a margin to work on, is usually considered lacking in courage—often referred to as "yellow."

All of which gives rise to the question as to whether it isn't just as difficult to hold a slight lead, with the opposition striving to cut it down, as to come from behind.

It is baseball tradition that certain pitchers given a margin of a few runs are almost unbeatable. These same pitchers are not nearly so effective when their team is trailing.

Some convincing arguments might be offered to prove the strain of holding the opposition at bat, when enjoying only a slight lead, is as difficult a task as plugging away when behind.

It might all be traced back to the temperament of the individual, merely a matter of nerves, rather than courage.

In sport, front runners are regarded as lacking in courage. Possibly they are being done quite an injustice.

COLLEGE CHAMPIONS MEET IN TRACK

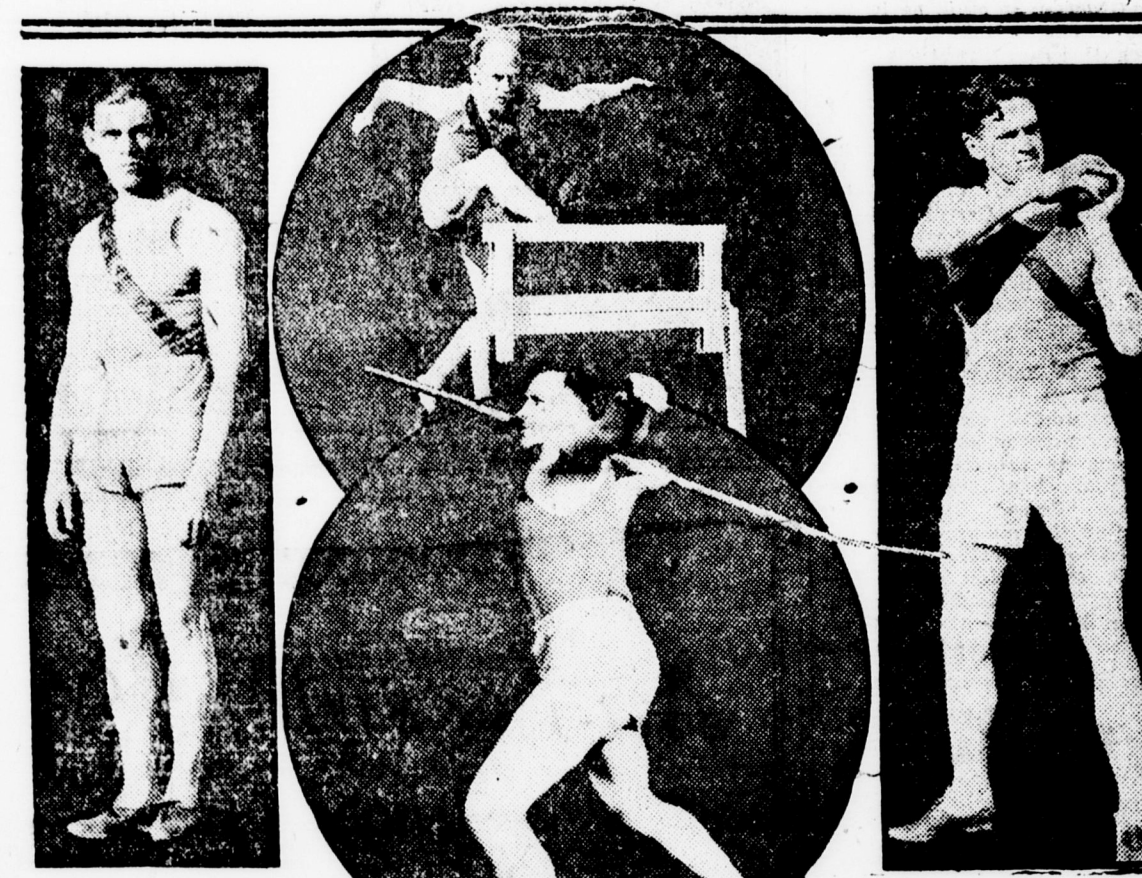

Clash Between California and Illinois Choice Tidbit

Hopes of the Middle West

Hopes of the Golden West

BY BILLY EVANS

Illinois against California. There's a choice tidbit in college track competition.

These two great combinations will fight it out at Berkeley, Calif., April 19.

Illinois is 1923 indoor champion of the Big Ten. Coach Harry Gill's proteges won that title in a most convincing manner by scoring almost twice as many points as the runnerup, Michigan.

California has thrice been returned victor in the eastern intercollegiate championships.

The fine work of the California athletes, particularly in the field events, has for three years been a rude shock to eastern athletes and coaches.

Illinois is hopeful that it can stop the winning ways of California in track and thereby bring considerable prestige to the middle west.

Twenty-four athletes, the cream of the Illinois squad, will make the trip.

The condition of two of the stars is rather doubtful. Milton Angier, American champion in the javelin, has a bad knee that may put him out of the running. Bob Ayres, veteran sprinter, is a casualty with a pulled tendon.

Illinois, aside from winning the indoor Big Ten meet, has defeated Notre Dame and Iowa in dual meets.

That California has another great team was proved by its victory over the strong University of Southern California aggregation.

Illinois expects stiff competition, particularly in the field events. California is stronger in the shot put. Captain Nehf, who has accomplished 46 feet 6 inches and Lane and Francis have both exceeded 42 feet. Borden broad jumps 23 feet 5 inches with Watkins pressing him closely.

In the sprints Barber and Sheppard are expected to make it interesting for Illinois.

Coach Walter Christie has the happy faculty of turning out winners and hopes to triumph over the west as decisively as he has the east in the past.

OIL BID MADE FOR SAFETY OF U. S., HE AVERS

Doheny Intimates That He Was Animated by This Motive in Oil Maneuvers

JAPAN APPROACHED HIM?

Says That Because of Possibility of Attack He Wanted Pearl Harbor Base

This is the sixth chapter of "How I Made My Millions" by E. L. Doheny, oil millionaire and central figure of the Senate oil investigation. (Copyright, 1924, NEA Service, Inc.)

BY E. L. DOHENY
The motive which chiefly prompted me to make a bid for Naval Reserve No. 1 was my firm conviction that the conversion of our fleet from coal to oil burners had left our Pacific coast defenseless from enemy attack. I had been approached by representatives of Japan, who wanted to buy great quantities of oil. I refused to sell, because I had become convinced that they were storing away immense quantities. For what? I could only conjecture.

These offers I reported to the Navy Department, and I was told that similar reports had been made by some young naval intelligence officers, but that they had been thought to be exaggerations. The evidence that these reports were accurate was brought out tragically at the time of the earthquake, when vast amounts of oil stored underground, added to the general havoc, and prolonged for days the conflagration the earthquake started.

Because of the possibility of attack from the west, I wanted to see Pearl Harbor, in the Hawaiian Islands, made into a great naval base, insuring the security of the country. The oil for such a base would come most conveniently from Naval Reserve No. 1, in California. This, I was convinced, was being tapped by private interests, who had adjacent claims. The way to save the oil that remained was to drill for it and store it. Admiral Robeson, chief of the naval engineers, reached the same conclusion.

I was invited to put in a bid to do this—and I did it primarily because of my anxiety to see an adequate naval base established at Pearl Harbor.

None was the bid most favorable to the government and I was awarded the contract. There was nothing wrong in this procedure. The judge advocate general had ruled that it would be legal to lease the reserve. Under the terms of the lease we agreed to construct at cost this oil base at Pearl Harbor to be paid for by the government in royalty oil as produced. Yet this involved an outlay on our part of $9,000,000.

CAN'T TELL THEM APART EVEN WHEN RACE IS OVER

These two high school runners, Ernest and David Latham, are twins and like most twins, are hard to tell apart. Both are runners and are galled about alike. In a recent race the two led the field and it became a contest of brother against brother. The finish was so close the judges called it a dead heat and left the decision to the brothers themselves. They run for the Lowell (Mass.) High School.

First Project

The first project of this undertaking has already been completed—tanks, pumps, dock, pipes, everything needed for the storage of 1,500,000 barrels of oil is ready. The second project for the storing of 2,700,000 barrels is 70 per cent completed. If President Coolidge accepts my offer I shall finish this project, paying the estimated $2,000,000 out of my own pocket; trusting my country to reimburse me once it understands the facts and realize how necessary to the national safety are these Pearl Harbor projects.

The lease calls for the furnishing and filling of these tanks with oil. Moreover, for a period of 15 years the Doheny Company must maintain 3,000,000 barrels of oil in warehouses on the Atlantic coast and 1,000,000 barrels on the Pacific coast, subject to navy orders. For 15 years my company stands pledged to furnish any petro-product the navy may need on the Pacific coast at 10 per cent less than the market prices.

Royalties to the government vary from 12 1/2 per cent to 55, depending on the flow. Up to date the royalties from my leases have averaged 32 1/2 per cent, while those from Naval Reserve No. 2 were 17 1/2 per cent, and those of Teapot Dome were 15 1/2. When the first wells were sunk in the reserve, I was greatly disappointed. For the first ten days, directly across the border, averaged 32,000 barrels a day; and the second ten, drilled by the same private interests, averaged 25,000 barrels but our first ten, on the Reserve, averaged only 260 barrels.

The whole attack on these leases is inspired by politics. It never would have been magnified into scandal if this weren't a presidential year, and some of the candidates found themselves without a political issue.

My Happiness

Oil scandal or no oil scandal, I'm not going to waste my time worrying. For I have too much to keep me happy—and I am not writing of money.

I have my wife, my son, my grandchildren—there are four of them now, and each is prettier than the other.

My boy is in business with me; and he has foresight. Three years before we got into the war, he hunched that we would be dragged into it. So he organized a battalion of California Naval Militia, hired a drill hall, procured the use of two navy ships for training, and was all set when the war came. The whole battalion enlisted. My boy later worked himself up to the commission of a lieutenant, senior grade.

It's such a family that makes life worth living. The family—and my work, without which there could be no happiness for me. I do not believe in retiring, and I hope to die with my boots on—working.

It is the way of most real prospectors.

tors, I guess. I recall Bill Hays, an old crony, with whom I teamed up at Tanto Basin while I was prospecting alone back in '77. We went it together for two years—a long time in the wilds—part of the time, we spent looking for the Adams Digging; part of the time we prospected around the headwaters of Salt River.

There was a saying in those days that a man who was out of luck "has gone up Salt River." We went up the river—both literally and figuratively. For we were without food for six weeks, living on wild turkey and sour cornmeal, without salt.

But eventually we got out of it all right. I went my way; and Bill went his. He later made a fortune, but lost it and died broke—after he went off on trips to Alaska and Guntah.

So I am staying right on my job. My greatest sport is riding a good, lively horse. That's real exhilaration. Brisk walking is good, too.

I like yachting. But it's inertia occasionally gets me.

And though I am 68, I don't yet feel old enough to play golf! (The End.)

STAR WILL RUN- IN EXHIBITION AT CITY MEET

Rolf Harnisen, Who Holds
Two State Records, Comes
Here on May 3

MANY SCHOOLS ACCEPT

Rolf Harnisen of Hazen, who established two state track records while attending the state school for the deaf and dumb at Devils Lake, and later made remarkable records in a school in Washington, D. C., will give exhibitions at the Capital City Track and Field meet to be held in Bismarck on May 3 under the auspices of Bismarck high school. Harnisen, who is now at the home in Hazen, is keeping in shape for try-outs for the American Olympic team in June.

Harnisen probably will run the 100-yard dash and 220 low hurdles, in which he established state records, at the meet here.

Eighteen high schools in this section have accepted invitations to participate in the track and field meet, and other acceptances to invitations are expected during the next week. It is expected that more than 150 athletes will participate in the meet, competing for loving cups and medals to be offered.

The track to be used is now being laid out, and Coach Edgar Houser of the Bismarck High School announces that a fast, cinder track will be ready for the meet. The meet will start at 2 p. m. May 3.

Billy Evans Says

"He's a wonder at coming from behind and winning."

Such is an oft-heard expression in sport with reference to the athlete who doesn't know defeat—keeps plugging at all times.

Golf offers one of the greatest examples of the come-from-behind theory in Walter Hagen. Bitter golfers are always worried about Hagen regardless of how far he may be behind.

"He's a front runner," is another much-used sport expression. It refers to the player who is hard to beat provided he gets out in front early.

The 1923 world series between the Yankees and the Giants furnished an exhibition of what may happen if one keeps plugging away.

The come-from-behind stunt was staged in the sixth and final game of the series. The refusal of Pitcher Herbie Pennock of the Yankees to admit defeat made possible the situation, and with it the championship.

Throughout the game the Giants hit Pennock consistently, scored four runs in seven innings. Only the breaks and Pennock's courage kept the score that low.

Nehf, for the Giants had simply been invincible. A home run by Ruth early in the game was the only score by the Yankees.

The break came in the eighth, when the invincible Nehf developed a streak of wildness that was fatal. The Yanks scored five runs and captured the game.

If Pennock had early conceded defeat, pitched carelessly, the Giants probably would have made six runs that the Yankee rally would have availed nothing.

Pennock's performance was a courageous one. Any time a team or individual comes from behind to win, the feat is regarded as tribute to gumption.

The athlete capable of coming from behind is regarded as game.

The athlete known as a front runner, one who shines when he has a margin to work on, is usually considered lacking in courage—often referred to as "yellow."

All of which gives rise to the question as to whether it isn't just as difficult to hold a slight lead, with the opposition striving to cut it down, as to come from behind.

It is baseball tradition that certain pitchers given a margin of a few runs are almost unbeatable. These same pitchers are not nearly so effective when their team is trailing.

Some convincing arguments might be offered to prove the strain of holding the opposition at bay, when enjoying only a slight lead, is as difficult a task as plugging away when behind.

It might all be traced back to the temperament of the individual, merely a matter of nerves, rather than courage.

In sport, front runners are regarded as lacking in courage. Possibly they are being done quite an injustice.

COLLEGE CHAMPIONS MEET IN TRACK Clash Between California and Illinois Choice Tidbit

BY BILLY EVANS
Illinois against California
There's a choice tidbit in college track competition.

These two great combinations will fight it out at Berkeley, Calif., April 19.

Illinois' 1923 indoor champion of the Big Ten, Coach Harry Gill, professes to be a "yellow" in a most convincing manner by scoring almost every point in the championship.

California has three been returning victor in the eastern intercollegiate championships.

The fine work of the California athletes, particularly in the field events, has for three years been a rude shock to eastern athletes and coaches.

Illinois is hopeful that it can turn the winning ways of California in track and field by being considerably practice to the middle west.

Twenty-four athletes, the cream of the Illinois squad, will make the trip.

The champion of two of the years is rather doubtful. Milton Arnesen, American champion in the javelin, has a lead here that has not been out of the running. How Arnesen, a great sprinter, is a county with a pulled tendon.

Illinois, aside from winning the indoor Big Ten meet, has defeated Notre Dame and Iowa in dual events.

That California has another great team was proved by its victory over the strong University of Southern California aggregation.

Illinois expects stiff competition, particularly in the field events. California is stronger in the end and Captain Neufeldt has accomplished 46 feet 6 inches and Long and Francis have both exceeded 42 feet.

Borden broad jumps 23 feet 5 inches with Watkins winning a close race in the sprint. Barber and Sheehan are expected to make it interesting for Illinois.

Coach Walter Christie has the happy faculty of turning out winners and hopes to triumph over the west as decisively as he has the east in the past.

OIL BID MADE FOR SAFETY OF U. S., HE AVERS

Doheny Intimates That He Was Animated by This Motive in Oil Maneuvers

JAPAN APPROACHED HIM?

Says That Because of Possibility of Attack He Wanted Pearl Harbor Base

This is the sixth chapter of "How I Made My Millions," by E. L. Doheny, oil millionaire and central figure of the Senate oil investigation. (Copyright, 1924, NEA Service, Inc.)

BY E. L. DOHENY

The motive which chiefly prompted me to make a bid for Naval Reserve No. 1 was my firm conviction that the conversion of our fleet from coal to oil burners had left our Pacific coast defenseless from enemy attack.

I had been approached by representatives of Japan, who wanted to buy great quantities of oil. I refused to sell, because I had become convinced that they were storing away immense quantities. For what? I could only conjecture.

These offers I reported to the Navy Department, and I was told that similar reports had been made by some young naval intelligence officers, but that they had been thought to be exaggerations. The evidence that these reports were accurate was brought out tragically at the time of the earthquake, when vast amounts of oil stored underground, added to the general havoc, and prolonged for days the conflagration the earthquake started.

Because of the possibility of attack from the west, I wanted to see Pearl Harbor, in the Hawaiian Islands, made into a great naval oil base, insuring the security of the country.

The oil for such a base would come most conveniently from Naval Reserve No. 1, in California. This, I was convinced, was being tapped by private interests, who had adjacent claims. The way to save the oil that remained was to drill for it and store it. Admiral Robeson, chief of the naval engineers, reached the same conclusion.

I was invited to put in a bid to do this—and I did it primarily because of my anxiety to see an adequate naval base established at Pearl Harbor.

None was the bid most favorable to the government and I was awarded the contract. There was nothing wrong in this procedure. The judge advocate general had ruled that it would be legal to lease the reserve.

Under the terms of the lease we agreed to construct at cost this oil base at Pearl Harbor to be paid for by the government in royalty oil oil produced. Yet this involved an outlay on our part of $9,000,000.

These two high school runners, Ernest and David Latham, are twins and like most twins are hard to tell apart. Both are runners and are called about alike. In a recent race the two led the field and it became a contest of brother against brother. The finish was so close the judges called it a dead heat and left the decision to the brothers themselves. They run for the Lowell (Mass.) High School.

First Project

The first project of this undertaking has already been completed—tankage, pumps, dock, pipes, everything needed for the storage of 1,500,000 barrels of oil is ready. The second project for the storing of 2,700,000 barrels is 70 per cent completed. If President Coolidge accepts my offer I shall finish this project, paying the estimated $2,000,000 out of my own pocket; trusting my country to reimburse me once it understands the facts and realize how necessary to the national safety are these Pearl Harbor projects.

The lease calls for the furnishing and filling of these tanks with oil. Moreover, for a period of 15 years the Doheny Company must maintain 3,000,000 barrels of oil in warehouses on the Atlantic coast and 1,000,000 barrels on the Pacific coast, subject to navy orders. For 15 years my company stands pledged to furnish any petroleum product the navy needs on the Pacific coast at 10 per cent less than the market price.

Royalties to the government vary from 12 1/2 per cent to 55, depending on the flow. Up to date the royalties from my leases have averaged 32 1/2 per cent, while those from Naval Reserve No. 2 were 17 1/2 per cent, and those of Teapot Dome were 15 1/2.

When the first wells were sunk in the reserve, I was greatly disappointed. For the first ten wells, drilled across the border, averaged 35,000 barrels a day; and the second ten, drilled by the same private interests, averaged 25,000 barrels but our first ten, on the Reserve, averaged only 200 barrels.

The whole attack on these leases is inspired by politics. It never would have been magnified into scandal if this weren't a presidential year and some of the candidates found themselves without a political issue.

My Happiness

Oil scandal or no oil scandal, I'm not going to waste my time worrying. For I have too much to keep me happy—and I am not writing of money.

I have my wife, my son, my grandchildren—there are four of them now, and each is prettier than the other.

My boy is in business with me; and he has foresight. Three years before we got into the war, he hunched that we would be dropped into it. So he organized a battalion of California Naval Militia, hired a drill hall, procured the use of two navy ships for training, and was all set when the war came. The whole battalion enlisted. My boy later worked himself up to the commission of a lieutenant, senior grade.

It's such a family that makes life worth living.

The family—and my work, without which there could be no happiness for me. I do not believe in retiring, and I hope to die with my boots on—working.

It is the way of most real prospectors.

FRED PATHMANN CANDIDATE FOR STATE SENATOR

Wagon, N. D., April 14: Fred Pathmann, after being prevailed upon by numerous citizens of the county, has decided to become a candidate for State Senator for the 47th Legislative District which comprises Grant county.

tors, I guess. I recall Bill Hays, an old cronie, with whom I teamed up as a prospector. We went up to the Adams Digging; part of the time we prospected around the headwaters of Salt River.

There was a saying in those days that a man who was out of luck "has gone up Salt River." We went up the river—both literally and figuratively. For we went without food for six weeks, living on wild turkey and sour cornmeal, without salt.

But eventually we got out of it all right. I went my way; and Bill went his. He later made a fortune, but lost it and died broke—after he went off on trips to Alaska and Guatemala.

So I am staying right on my job. My greatest sport is riding a good, lively horse. That's real exhilaration. Brisk walking is good, too. I like yachting. But it's inertia occasionally gets me.

And although I am 68, I don't yet feel old enough to play golf! (The End.)
